Trapped on Blazing Piazza, Then Rescued

FUMES PERIL WATERFRONT FIREMEN

Two fires in Greater Boston, one believed to be of incendiary origin, today caused a total damage estimated at $36,000 and menaced the lives of four persons.

The four persons were imperilled by a blaze in a three-story wooden building in Hawthorne street, Chelsea. The other fire was in a three-story warehouse on India Wharf.

In the Chelsea fire a mother and her two children huddled for 20 minutes on a third floor rear rear piazza before firemen could reach them and a boarder who was trapped in another room.

NewAmoskeag Firm Pays 125% in Year

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 27—Less than a year after it had reopened its gates, the Amoskeag Industries, Inc., today declared a 125 per cent dividend to its stockholders.

The announcement was made here by the directors of the Amoskeag Industries, Inc., which acquired the assets of the liquidated Amoskeag Manufacturing Company last October for $5,000,000.

Of the total dividend, $25 a share will be paid in cash and the remaining 100 per cent in five-year notes, bearing interest at 6 per cent.

Only two years ago 12,000 persons in this industrial city were put out of work when the Amoskeag mills, largest cotton textile unit in this country, closed.

An investigation, instigated by the then Governor H. Styles

WILL RETURN TO HUSBAND AT ONCE

Tears of joy striping her cheeks, Mrs. Francis Ormond French, estranged wife of the bankrupt father-in-law of John Jacob Astor III, revealed to the Boston Evening American exclusively today that she had "made up" with her husband and would return to him immediately.

Sitting in a fragile chair in the parlor of a modest rooming house on Pinckney street, Mrs. French, her hand clutched tightly by her daughter, Mary Galvin, said:

"This morning I had a lovely letter from Frankie and everything seems to be wonderful. I love him dearly and I am so glad that we are going to settle our differences."

Earlier in the day Mrs. French had been upset by an alleged statement made by her husband to a Providence newspaper which reported him as saying there would be no reconciliation.

Reached at his $10-a-week room on Paradise avenue, Middletown, R. I., by the Boston Evening Amer

Lake Tells Mediums' 'Power'

"Spirits" Revealed Secrets, He Says

Austen Lake, Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser staff writer, continues his story of Lily Dale, N. Y., where spiritualistic mediums of all classes gather each summer. Today he relates his table-tipping experience, and tells of spirit photos. He sums up his findings and tells how he became convinced some mediums have "extra faculty" beyond ordinary human power.

Mr. Lake's gripping articles will conclude in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. There will be no installment in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

October Trial Set In "Borgia" Case

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 27 (INS)—Judge Charles S. Bell today set October 11 as the date for the trial of Mrs. Ann Marie Hahn, alleged "Borgia woman," on charges that she murdered two elderly German acquaintances by poison.

QUIZ DOCTOR IN HUNT FOR SWARTZ

Providing a sensational new angle in the Newton police murder case, an armed and masked thug today invaded the apartment of Mrs. Edward J. Black, wife of the key witness, slugged her, warned her to silence and threatened her with death.

Like her husband, Mrs. Black, whose home is in Cambridge street, Allston, had supplied valuable information to the authorities about the slayer-suspect, Edward Simpson, better known as James Swartz, and his gangster and women friends.

Other developments today included the questioning of a Dorchester doctor and three other persons, one of them a woman, on suspicion they had treated or sheltered Swartz.

The attack on Mrs. Black concentrated the search for Swartz in the Allston-Brighton district again, as police declared her assailant may have been the suspect himself or a friend who is hiding him.

The attack occurred at 3 o'clock

BLOODSTAIN CLUE FOUND IN R. R. YARD

this morning, but police did not learn of it until nearly noon.

When two officers, Sergt Joseph Maguire and Special Officer George Doherty of the Brighton division, went to question Mrs. Black for any additional assistance she might be able to give they found her face bruised.

Reluctantly and fearfully, she told them the story of the armed invasion of the second-floor apartment where she lives with her six children.

"I woke up and heard a rapping at the upstairs rear door," she said. "I tiptoed out and listened, then asked: 'Who is it?'

"A man's voice, low and soft, answered: 'Police.'

"FORCED WAY IN"

"I decided to open the door just a crack and look the man over. I hadn't even turned on the light. I didn't want to be a target in case somebody was coming to hurt me.

"The moment I opened the door a crack, the man outside forced it open and forced himself in. He had a mask over his face and revolver in his hand.

"He shoved the gun right into my face and said: 'If you talk any more about this case, you're done. And another thing, don't you make any mention of Edna or anybody else in connection with this thing.'"

With that, according to Mrs. Black, the thug swung a blow on her jaw with the back of his left hand and said:

"That's just a little sample of what you'll get."

When he left, she locked the door and went back to bed, to lie awake until dawn, debating whether to ask the police for protection or keep silent.

Capt. John McGrath of Brighton division supplied the Black home with a police guard and relayed the woman's story to the district attorney's office at East Cambridge, headquarters of the hunt for Swartz.

MRS. BLACK "CAN'T SLEEP"

On her way to East Cambridge jail to visit her husband this afternoon, Mrs. Black told a reporter she was unable to sleep much, because of her fear, which penetrated her dreams and kept her waking up with a start.

"Poor Mary, my 13-year-old daughter, was awakened when that man slapped me and sent me staggering against the wall, this morning," she said.

"Now I have been served with an eviction notice and must go to court about that tomorrow. We haven't any money and while my husband is getting his three meals in jail, my six children wouldn't eat if it wasn't for the generosity of friends."

Mrs. Black made a spectacular entry into the investigation two days ago after her husband had surrendered for questioning.

She engaged in an hysterical argument with Mrs. Alice Noone, the Allston waitress, who was held as a material witness at the same time that Black was held as an alleged accessory after murder and also as a material witness.

SUPPLIED INFORMATION

Mrs. Black also supplied considerable information about Swartz, although far less than was given the authorities by her husband, who is now leading police on raids of farmhouses and camps in the hunt for the slayer suspect.

Further inquiry revealed that Mrs. Black was so alarmed during her brief encounter with the thug that she was unable to say for sure whether or not it was Swartz, although she did not think it was.

Only two hours before the attack on Mrs. Black came to light, police found clues in the Beacon Park railroad yard of the Boston & Albany, in the Brighton-Allston sec[illegible] indicating the wounded slayer [illegible] Patrolman Henry G. Bell may h[illegible]e slept there.

Bloodstains were found on cushions in an old railroad coach which had evidently been used as a sleeping room.

This discovery was made during the course of a thorough search of all freight and passenger cars by 14 Brighton officers, on a "tip" received from an Allston woman.

The officers wore bullet-proof vests, carried riot guns and were prepared for a desperate battle.

In the old abandoned coach they found a bed, made of five seat cushions placed on the floor, and all around were evidences that somebody had slept there during the past few days.

There was an empty pop bottle, a newspaper of Tuesday's date, a paper bag and a sheet of wax paper in which sandwiches had evidently been wrapped, and cigarette ashes on the floor.

QUESTION WOMAN

A 37-year-old Dorchester doctor, who suffered a suspension of his license to practice several months ago, was taken into custody at his apartment by Special Officers Joseph Reimer and Harry Mulqueeney, and questioned at Brighton station and later at headquarters. He denied knowing Swartz or treating him for wounds.

This doctor had hardly reached the Brighton station than an attractive and stylishly dressed woman, living on Glenville avenue, Allston, was brought in by Sergeant James V. Crowley and Detective Thomas Conaty, of headquarters.

She smiled broadly while being questioned about a report her husband had assisted the slayer to escape.

Shortly afterward the woman's husband was brought in by Sergt. Frank Russell, Sergt. Joseph Maguire and Detective Francis O'Connor. He denied knowing Swartz but was taken, with the others, to headquarters for further questioning by Sergt Crowley.

A third man was picked up in South Boston on a "tip" he had information about Swartz.

Police also received information today from an underworld source that the doctor who treated Swartz was the one who treated "Bad Willie" Gray, now a State Prison inmate, several years ago after Gray was badly wounded.

This doctor is said to be an expert at extracting bullets. His method of working in underworld cases, it was stated, is to arrange to meet the patient at some isolated camp. In Gray's case, the operation was performed in New Hampshire.

More hopeful reports on Motorcycle Officer Lawrence Murphy, who was wounded while trying to save Patrolman Bell, came from Newton Hospital today.

Although Murphy spent a restless night, he was holding his own and doctors said if he continued to do so for another few days he should recover.

Murphy has not yet been permitted to give a statement to police.

ican. French hotly denied he had said any such thing.

"You tell Mrs. French I love her dearly. In my letter to her this morning I outlined our mutual problems—mostly financial—and we are sure we will be able to fix everything up fine."

Mrs. French and Mary Galvin, daughter by former marriage to a wealthy Boston florist, have been living in a tiny furnished room in Pinckney street.

Until recently Miss Galvin had been suporting her mother, accustomed to the glamour of Newport millions, by working in a soap factory.

Although he knew that Miss Galvin had lost that job and that he himself now has liabilities totaling nearly $5000, French said cheerfully:

"I got myself in a jam in 1921 when I lost every penny and I had millions washed away on Wall street. But it doesn't make any difference. My wife and I will get everything settled fine."

Mrs. French deserted her husband two weeks ago when she learned that his vast fortune had finally dwindled down to $1.48, which he used to pay a Chinese laundry bill.

French is the father of Ellen "Tucker" French, of Dedham, who married the multi-millionaire John Jacob Astor II, of Newport.

When Mrs. French fled her husband with daughter Mary she said his filing of bankruptcy proceedings "was the last straw."

But today she said:

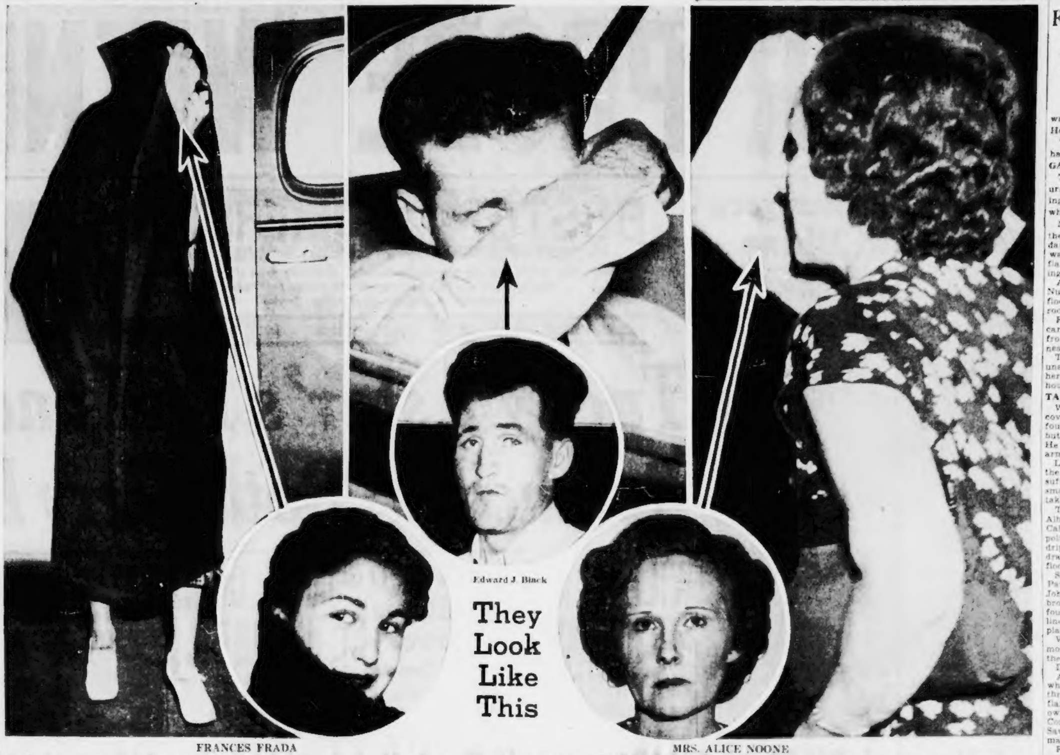
SPOTLIGHTED FIGURES IN MURDER CASE HIDE FACES IN VAIN



Edward J. Black

FRANCES FRADA

MRS. ALICE NOONE

Evidently anxious to avoid photographers are these three, held under heavy bonds in connection with the hunt for the slayer of a Newton officer and wounding of another. Frances Frada of Cambridge, "Pickup girl," allegedly in the death car before the killing of Patrolman Henry Bell and wounding of Patrolman Lawrence Murphy, is held in $50,000 cash bail charged with being accessory before a felony. Edward Black is held in $50,000 cash bonds, charged with being accessory after a felony. He is said to have been a close friend of James R. Swartz, alias Simpson, widely-hunted fugitive in the case. Mrs. Alice Noone of Allston, under $25,000 bonds, is held as a material witness. She is an acquaintance of Swartz, police claim.

Firebug Endangers 4 In Chelsea Dwelling

FIGHT FUMES AT BLAZE ON WATERFRONT

was taken to Chelsea Memorial Hospital.

GASOLINE IGNITED

The firebug, firemen said, saturated the second floor of the building with gasoline and ignited it while the tenants slept.

Mrs. George Baker, who lives on the third floor with her two small daughters, Barbara, 5, and Lena, 4, was cut off from escape when flames destroyed the stairway leading to their apartment.

At the same time, Edward McNulty, a boarder in another third floor apartment, was trapped in his room.

Firemen, arriving on the scene, carried McNulty down a ladder in front of the building. He had been nearly overcome by smoke.

TAKEN DOWN LADDER

When their presence was discovered, Patrolman McArthur fought his way to the third floor, but was beaten back by flames. He was burned about the face and arms.

Ladders were finally raised and the trapped trio rescued. All were suffering from the effects of smoke and shock. They were taken to a hospital for treatment.

The blaze was discovered when Albert Maxwell, of the Independent Cab Company, phoned Chelsea police and told them gasoline was dripping into his office from a drain pipe leading to the second floor.

Sergeant Herbert Hannahury and Patrolmen William Garrity and John C. Pike, sent to the premises, broke into the second floor and found the place smeared with gasoline and littered with carefully placed paper and rubbish.

When the officers went to summon help, a time fuse went off and the blaze began.

Damage was estimated at $1500.

A short time later, the India wharf warehouse was rocked by three mysterious blasts, which sent flames racing through the building, owned by the Eastern Steamship Company and occupied by the Savogran Chemical Company, soap manufacturers.

Fireman Edward Gaughan of engine company 7 was overcome by smoke during the battle with the flames and assisted from the fourth floor down a ladder by fellow-firemen.

Clouds of smoke hid the custom House tower and covered the inner harbor along Rowe's, India and Long wharves.

More than 20 pieces of apparatus were dispatched to the scene as the rapidly burning chemicals threatened to spread to other buildings and the S. S. Allerton, tied up at Long Wharf. The fireboat John P. Dowd assisted in fighting the blaze.

The fire, which was said to have started on the first floor, caused approximately $35,000 in damages, it was estimated.

Fighting Fumes at Wharf Fire

With 25 hose lines turned into the India Wharf warehouse, destroyed by fire early today, firemen were caught for a time in the billowing back-draft of chemical smoke as a result of three explosions. One fireman was overcome and carried down a ladder from the fourth floor. Fire loss was put at $35,000. The building was occupied by soap and disinfectant manufacturers.

Chelsea Mother Tells of Saving 2 From Flames

Mrs. George Baker, who, with her two children, nearly lost her life in a fire in Hawthorne street, Chelsea, early today, related her experience to a Boston Evening American reporter.

"My husband, who is a driver for a contracting firm, was away from home and when he's gone I sleep lightly," she said.

"I was awakened by some noise. I smelled smoke, and I went to the bedroom window. In the rain-swept street below I could see people running toward our house.

"Then I went to the door, not calling the children, for I didn't want to frighten them.

"The knob was so hot that my hand was seared. Later I found that electric light bulbs in the hall had been melted into long strings of glass, and lead pipes had been melted so that water ran out. I don't know what made it so hot.

"The stairs were filled with smoke and flames. So I woke up the children and we went onto the back piazza. I covered their faces with wet towels. We were all frightened and nervous until policemen broke into the flat.

"Then the firemen took us down the ladders."

Princess Weds American Soon

BRIDE-TO-BE OF ACTOR'S AGENT

Fairfield, Conn., Aug. 27 (AP)—The international romance of John Chapman Wilson, American theatrical agent, and Princess Natalie Paley, sometimes called "the best-dressed woman in the world," was apparently nearing the altar today.

Wilson, representative of Noel Coward, famous British playwright, applied for a marriage license at the office of Town Clerk Samuel Glover yesterday, but said later at his Sasco Hill home that no date had been set for the ceremony.

MUST WAIT 'TIL MONDAY

It was a virtual certainty, however, that the wedding will be held in this suburban community, home of many noted artists and writers, as Connecticut law provides a marriage license must be used in the town where issued.

Under normal procedure, the couple cannot be married before Monday, as the law requires a five-day wait unless a probate court waiver is obtained.

Wilson, whose first marriage it will be, listed his age as 38 in the application and that of his fiancee as 31.

REDS SLEW FATHER

The Princess Natalie is a daughter of the late Grand Duke Paul of Russia, slain by Bolsheviks during the revolution at the close of the World War. She was born in Paris where she has spent most of her life.

She inherited her title upon the death of her mother, the former Olga Pistolkors, who was created Princess Paley upon her marriage to the Grand Duke.

PENNED VIEWS SOLVE PROBLEM

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 27 (AP)—Thomas A. Edison, five years after his death, outdid the spirits two weeks ago and made a decision which kept one of his largest manufacturing plants from shutting down.

The plant was the battery division of Thomas A. Edison, Inc. Nickel had been discovered in $40,000 worth of Swedish iron, used to make the negative "active materials" for alkaline batteries. This is an unusually pure form of iron and no more was available at the time in this country.

A staff conference was called to consider whether the nickel impurity ruined the iron for battery manufacture.

The staff looked inquiring.

"Im not sure," Stringfellow added, "but I think it can be done."

PENNED ANSWERS

Then he told them this story. In 1926, while Edison was the active consultant for the battery company, Stringfellow proposed:

"Mr. Edison, would you be willing to arrange to continue as consultant after you have passed on?"

"Are you crazy," said Edison.

"It might work," Stringfellow replied. "You invented this battery. In your mind there is information about it that no one else has. Will you let the staff give you written questions about the battery, every Saturday afternoon before you go home? You could bring the answers in writing to work on Monday morning."

Edison agreed. Over week-ends he penciled answers to lists of typewritten questions. Eighty-seven questions were asked and answered in two years. They were mostly academic. They were bits of information not available as a rule in scientific records.

ACCEPT DECISION

They were filed away in a black loose-leaf book. The book remained in the files after Edison's death in October, 1931. It was forgotten by nearly everyone except Mr. Stringfellow. He brought it out for the staff conference two weeks ago.

No one knew whether it would contain the nickel question, but it did.

"If there is nickel in iron," Stringfellow had written, "does it adversely affect the life of the cell?"

The cell is part of a battery.

"No harm," Edison wrote.

The conference accepted this decision. It turned out to be the correct one. Subsequent investigation showed that improved methods of chemical analysis had probably detected the presence in iron of small amounts of nickel that had previously escaped notice.

Edison spent 10 years perfecting this battery. His men today say it took more time than any other of his inventions and is one the public scarcely heard about. They say that in making it Edison asked himself over 50,000 questions and worked out the answers in his laboratory.

Sen. Walsh Urges Navy Building

Washington, Aug. 27 (INS)—Adoption of a $200,000,000 naval construction program at the next session of Congress to provide modern war ships, more fighting planes and round out the fleet, was advocated here by Senator Walsh (D.) before leaving for his home in Massachusetts.

"World conditions demand that we look to our defenses. It behooves us to be prepared for any emergency," said the chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

Altogether, Congress appropriated about $130,000,000 for completion of 60 vessels at the session just ended. Another $60,000,000 was authorized but not appropriated for continuation of the naval program.

With the roster of combat vessels being rounded out, attention also is being directed toward construction of the necessary auxiliary fleet, Walsh said, explaining:

"Every time the keel is laid for a combat vessel plans must go forward immediately for auxiliary ships. There must be a train of tenders, supply, hospital and other ships."

Joan's Love Happiness

JOAN CRAWFORD FRANCHOT TONE

KEEPS QUIET ABOUT HER AFFECTION

Hollywood, Aug. 27 (AP)—To stay happily married in Hollywood, Joan Crawford said today, you've got to be more silent than an August sunset.

Added the twice-wed actress:

"It is only human nature to wish to talk about the person you love. But don't do it in Hollywood."

"Every word finds its way into print," she told interviewers.

Brown-haired, saucer-eyed, slimmer than she was the day she danced into the movies more than 10 years ago, the 31-year-old former Texan will celebrate the second anniversary of her marriage to Franchot Tone October 11.

She gladly discussed her hobbies—from the black bottom to the classic ballet—but not her husband. Tone draws the same line.

Both have decided:

Playground Toys Go to Hospitals

Toys made by more than 20,000 school children during the summer months at the 154 playgrounds in the city will be distributed to hospital playrooms in Greater Boston and sent as Christmas gifts to children in other countries.

This was announced today by the Junior Red Cross of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter, whose headquarters are at 347 Commonwealth avenue, Back Bay. Mrs. Henry R. Scott is in charge of the distribution.

The recreational activity was under the direction of Miss Julia Murphy, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Devlin, together with playground supervisors and teachers. A collection of toys is on display in the William Blackstone School, Blossom street, West End.

FIND 'LETTERS' OF MISSING MAN EMPTY

Two sealed letters that police hoped would lead them to a solution of the disappearance of John G. Lowe, 52, retired Dayton, O., manufacturer, deepened the mystery further today when the letters were found empty.

The letters were found with $214 in cash and $1400 in travelers' checks in Lowe's cabin aboard a New York to Boston bound boat, from which Lowe disappeared early this week.

Captain Benjamin Wall of the Milk street station opened the letters following permission from postal authorities. One letter was addressed to Mrs. Ada Pollard, Lowe's housekeeper at a summer residence at Essex, Ct., and the other to "Brother Jack."

"There wasn't even a sheet of blank paper in the letters," Captain Wall declared.

Mrs. Pollard had declared she received a telegram from New York last Tuesday which was sent "collect" and signed with Lowe's name.

Adding to the mystery, since Mrs. Pollard said Lowe always paid in advance for telegrams, the wire stated:

"Delayed. May wire from Boston."

At Greenwhich, Ct., police reported today that the body of a man was seen floating in Long Island sound off Horton Point. The message was relayed to the Coast Guard at Borthport, L. I.

DENIAL BY KIN

In New York a brother-in-law of Lowe, Robert Patterson, denied reports that Lowe was a chronic sleepwalker and that he had a five-foot iron picket fence built around his nine-room terrace home in New York to guard himself.

Patterson said the disappearance was a mystery to him and to Loew's sisters. He said Lowe was happy and had everything to live for.

Patterson, commenting on the letters, revealed that Lowe has no brother "Jack" but has a son by that name.

Police Shift Duties As Shakeup Here Takes Effect

The recently announced shakeups in the Boston police department went into effect today with transfer of 10 captains, two lieutenants and 10 sergeants, and new assignments for 13 recently-promoted lieutenants and 21 sergeants.

Command of the Back Bay station was taken over by Thomas F. Harvey, former traffic division lieutenant, who was raised to the rank of captain and replaced Captain Francis M. Tiernan. Tiernan was shifted to night duty at the Warren avenue station.

Captain Francis J. Murphy, assigned to the Warren avenue station several months ago, goes to the West Roxbury station, replacing Captain Thomas P. Cleavy, who moves to the bureau of criminal investigation.

Captain James T. Sheehan, head of the racket squad, takes command of the Fields Corner station, succeeding Captain Thomas F. Mulrey, who goes to the detective bureau.

Captain John J. Mullen of Charestown succeeds Captain Sheehan as the racket squad head and is replaced by Captain Leonard E. E. O'Connell of Mattapan. Other changes are:

Captain Thomas G. Duggan, superintendent's office to Mattapan; Captain William D. Donovan, superintendent's office to Joy street station on its re-opening next month; Captain John J. Fitzpatrick, superintendent's office to bureau of records.

Bingham Lands, Denies He'll Quit

Quebec, Aug. 27 (INS)—Flatly denying he planned to resign as America's ambassador to the Court of St. James', Robert Worth Bingham was speeding south by motor following his arrival here on the S.S. Empress of Britain from England.

Met by his daughter, Ambassador Bingham revealed he planned to report at once to President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Bartender Dies In Sing Sing Chair

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—Louis Apicello, unemployed bartender died in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison for the murder of Albert Haglund because the latter chided him about his professional ability as he sought re-employment in a Brooklyn bar.

He made no statement but repeated a prayer after Father John McCaffrey, Catholic prison chaplain, as he was strapped in the chair.

Canadian Fair Opens in Toronto

Toronto, Aug. 27 (Canadian Press)—Gates of the 59th Canadian national exhibition were thrown open today and turnstiles began the clicking which will continue 14 hours a day for 14 days.

Officials said they hoped for a record attendance, possibly 2,000,000 persons, for the coronation year fair.

IMPORT ICE TO MEET N. E. SHORTAGE CRISIS

"Any ice today, iceman?"

New England housewives may find themselves asking this question between now and Labor Day as the result of an ice shortage here, it was disclosed today.

Local ice firms have been importing ice from Pennsylvania and New York in an effort to meet the demand of outlying towns, which are short in supply because last year's mild winter prevented the usual harvest of local ice.

This fact coupled with the recent protracted heat wave brought hurry calls for assistance to local companies, which have been manufacturing ice at capacity all summer, Clark Bennett, assistant treasurer of the Metropolitan Ice Company, declared.

Bennett said there was no cause for alarm at present in the metropolitan area. The shortage exists mostly along the seaboard, where high temperatures have been experienced.

Most of the ice imported comes from the Pocono Mountain section of Pennsylvania. Natural ice is shipped from Pocono and Gouldsboro, Pa., he said. Shipping takes approximately 48 hours.

Bennett commended the co-operation of railroad companies in assisting to meet the crisis. He said the railroads have instituted emergency schedules and are keeping the ice moving northward.

Local prices have not been affected, but heavy freight costs have sent prices in the outlying districts skyrocketing from $1 a ton to between $2.80 and $3 a ton. It is expected that normal conditions will return after Labor Day, when the local output will meet the demand.

COAST GUARDS DEFY FOG, LAND INJURED MAN

While a heavy fog tied up shipping in the harbor and grounded all planes at the airport, the coast guard patrol boat Thatis groped into port today bringing an injured fisherman.

The fisherman, John Pever, of Bigelow street, Brighton, was taken from the trawler Curlew 160 miles east of Boston.

Upon arrival he was taken to Chelsea Marine Hospital, where he was found suffering a fractured shin. He had jammed his foot while aboard the Curlew.

The steamer Kent from Philadelphia docked two hours late.

The Eastern Steamship Lines, the Yarmouth, from Yarmouth, N. S., the St. John, from St. John, N. B., and the New York, from New York, all due between 7 and 8 o'clock, arrived late because of the fog.

There were no outgoing vessels.

Shoot Selves to Get 'Fame'

Edmonton, Alta., Aug. 27 (INS)—John D. Lane, 19, and George Knox, 23, who told police they had been shot by a mysterious assailant when they were found lying wounded in a lane here Sunday, calmly confessed today they had shot each other "to gain notoriety in the community."

The judge promptly sentenced Lane to six months and Knox to three months, on a charge of fabricating evidence.

A. W. Mellon a Modern Midas And a Mystery Man Unknown

By W. W. CHAPLIN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

New York, Aug. 27—Andrew W. Mellon was a modern Midas and a modern mystery.

Even from boyhood everything he touched turned to gold, until he was one of the ten richest men in the world, whose interests and influence spread across the earth.

Yet to the very day of his death he remained a man unknown, a shadowy legend whom none could claim as intimate.

Small of stature, frail of physique, unimpressive in appearance, Andrew Mellon was the perfect opposite of the popular conception of an empire builder, a financial giant, and a political bigwig.

MADE HISTORY

Yet in his more than 80 years he was all these things, as well as many more, and in the history of his country his life is assured of permanent and prominent mention.

He was of naturally retiring nature, shrinking from the spotlight of public attention, but he never let this aversion divert him from affairs which he considered his duty or his destiny.

Though at the peak of his public career he was mentioned for the Presidency of the United States, he himself preferred to remain as much as possible out of sight behind the scenes, from his obscurity making the decisions for others to put into effect under the public gaze.

Mellon surrounded himself with such an aura of mystery in his search for peace and quiet that not even his exact age was known at the time of his death.

OFTEN CHANGED

Early biographies, which he approved, said he was born on March 24, 1852, but later official records placed the date in 1855. During his 11-year tenure as Secretary of the Treasury his age was twice reduced, first by two years and then by a third. When he died his age was officially 82, a compromise between the various birth dates he had authorized.

Andrew Mellon was born in Pittsburgh to circumstances of affluence. His father had been farmer, judge and private banker, and became one of the first millionaires of the city where scores have since made millions.

He went to the city schools and then entered, though without enthusiasm, Western University, which is now the University of Pittsburgh.

Already the urge toward his later financial greatness was asserting itself and at the beginning of his junior year, when he was only 16, he obtained his father's permission to desert the academic life for the field of business.

JOINED BY BROTHER

He was joined in his youthful assault on fame and fortune by his brother, Richard B. Mellon, who was then only 13 but who supplemented his brother's genius through the rest of their lives in the world of finance.

After preliminary and successful ventures in building and real estate, the brothers joined their father in his private banking house, and from that day began the steady growth of the greatest financial empire in the history of America, guided into being by the unerring judgment of the elder brother.

Banks were added to the original financial house, interests were obtained in the industries sprouting up in the vanguard of the boom prosperity ahead.

The name of Mellon became a name to conjure with in the world of money and industry, like the names of Ford and Rockefeller and Morgan.

When Andrew Mellon finally turned from the pursuits of business to take a $15,000 a year position as Secretary of the Treasury, he was director in 200 companies and already a billionaire.

He was one of the few who retained that financial standing after the crash of 1929, which preceded his withdrawal from Washington to become ambassador to England.

Throughout his career Andrew Mellon gave generously, though judiciously, to charity, weighing the value of each gift as carefully as he considered a business proposition.

GREATEST GIFTS

His greatest gifts included backing construction of the skyscraper university of the University of Pittsburgh and endowing the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

But his greatest gift was that of his $50,000,000 art collection, to be housed in a $10,000,000 museum in Washington, for the instruction and pleasure of the nation.

Throughout all his intensively active career Mellon retained a passionate love for beauty in art and amassed one of the finest collections of old masters in the world.

He was said sometimes to stand before one picture for hours, absorbing each detail of its loveliness and finding in such contemplation the peace and quiet so difficult to attain in the fields of business and politics.

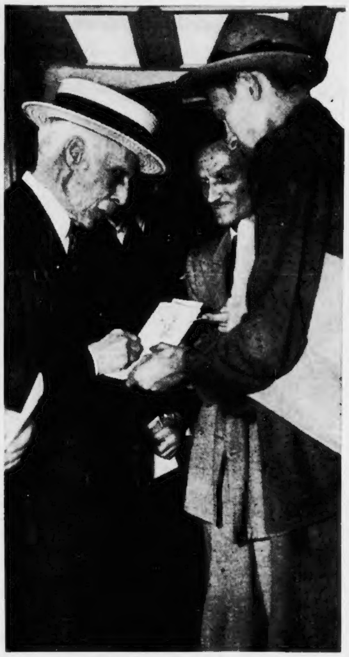
Although he was always a shrewd businessman, he would pay any price for a picture he wanted. He bought Rafael's "Alba Madonna" from the Soviet government for $1,166,400 and during 1930 he paid that government in all $6,654,000 for 15 pictures.

FAILED AT MARRIAGE

Apparently the only phase of life in which he failed was in romance. In 1900 he married the beautiful Nora McMullen, granddaughter of Peter Guinness, Dublin brewer. She was 25 years his junior and their married life did not last. He sued for divorce and in 1912 it was granted on the ground of desertion.

There were two children of that marriage, a son and a daughter. For a time the children, Paul and Ailsa, spent much of their time with their mother, but as the years passed they saw more and more of their father.

Ailsa became secretary Mellon's official hostess in Washington. She married David K. Este Bruce and it was at the Bruce home in Southhampton on Long Island that Andrew Mellon spent his last days.



ANDREW W. MELLON

Besieged on Recent Trip

Nephew of Mellon Seen New Ruler Of Dynasty

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27 (AP)—Financial circles predicted today that the mantle of financial power which fell from Andrew W. Mellon would descend upon 38-year-old Richard King Mellon.

Grim, stocky and six feet tall, the younger Mellon is a son of Richard Beatty Mellon, Andrew's brother and lifelong partner. Already he holds—has held for years—the reins of some of the chief Mellon enterprises.

Like his father and his uncle, he avoids the public eye.

The key position from which he rules the great fortune is president of Mellbank Corporation, the unit which controls the Mellon banking system. He is president and director of a dozen other companies.

Public Debt Soars Past 37 Billions

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—The public debt rolled over the $37,000,000,000 mark on August 25.

A treasury report today showed the debt climbed $51,734,110 on that day to $37,021,303,409.

The increase resulted largely from a $50,000,000 issue of discount bills to bolster the treasury's supply of ready cash.

The debt will climb another $150,000,000 during the next three weeks, as the treasury issues weekly offerings of bills under its September financing plans.

The August 25 debt was $3,629,552,553 over that on the same date a year ago.

MELLON SERVICES SET FOR SATURDAY

New York, Aug. 27 (INS)—The body of Andrew W. Mellon, financial genius and Secretary of Treasury in the administrations of three Presidents, will be removed tonight to Pittsburgh, where Mellon built his industrial empire.

Mellon died last night at the age of 82 at the Bonnie Dune estate of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, in Southampton, L. I. Today his body reposed at a funeral parlor in Southampton.

Late today the body was to be taken to New York and placed aboard a special car attached to "The Pittsburgher" of the Pennsylvania railroad, scheduled to arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow morning.

Services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the East Liberty Presbyterian church. Dr. John Hutchinson, pastor, will officiate, and interment will be private.

Death was peaceful and was caused by uremia and bronchopneumonia.

With him at the end were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce; His son, Paul Mellon; his physician, Dr. T. J. Abernethy of Washington, and a nurse.

LAST WEEKS IN BED

The Industrialist was taken ill in Washington last June where he had remained into the hot weather to direct the cherished dream of his life—his gift to the American people of a national art gallery, which is to house his magnificent collection of old masters, valued at $50,000,000.

His illness was a recurrence of a bronchial ailment from which he had suffered for two years. In July he went to the home of his daughter, who had been his hostess in London during his brief reign there as ambassador.

Confined to the house, except for brief walks to the village, he continued to devote himself to the progress of his museum. For the last weeks he remained in bed most of the time.

Increasingly shy and retiring in recent years, Mellon's last public appearance was in Pittsburgh last May when he spoke a few words at the dedication of the new building of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

Secluded in his Pittsburgh headquarters, the billionaire financier, who was a director in more than 200 corporations, had multiplied his fortune in a dozen different industrial pursuits and yet retained such a quiet simplicity about his life that he was scarcely known.

DODGED SPOTLIGHT

Mellon dodged the spotlight so successfully that when he was suggested for the treasury post to President Harding in 1921, the latter said:

"Mellon? Mellon? I don't recognize the name."

Ascetic by nature and unostentatious by choice, the man who held the purse strings of the nation for 11 years never owned a yacht, private car or country place.

Except for his expensive indulgence in paintings, his life was far simpler than that of most people of comfortable means.

The man whose Midas' touch turned into a golden stream of dollars every enterprise he entered, found time to stand enraptured and gaze for hours at some work of art which caught his fancy.

OFTEN LACKED CHANGE

Although he handled millions of his own money and of the nation's, Mellon was known often to be without pocket change. Recently he had to borrow 60 cents to pay for a taxicab ride to his Washington office.

It was Mellon's habit of indulging in occasional poker games at his Washington apartment that prompted one of his secretaries to say:

"He is the kind of a poker player who always has 'em when you call him and never has 'em when you don't."

The star of destiny of the man who was to become known as the "greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton," shone brightly from the very beginning.

Throughout his private and public career, Mellon has been the object of repeated attacks, political and otherwise.

His greatest battle, however, came after his retirement from office when he was charged with wholesale evasion of taxes and was sued by the treasury for $3,089,261.

The case has dragged on for years but a decision is expected from the tax appeals board shortly.

It was not possible to obtain an official estimate from Mellon's associates as to the extent of the fortune left by him but his known holdings in a small group of industries are said to be far in excess of one billion dollars.

Huge Sums Given By Mellon; Many Secret Gifts

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27 (INS)—Andrew W. Mellon's benefactions were almost as legendary as his fortune.

He gave away millions which are a matter of record but many of his gifts were not known publicly.

For years A. W. and his brother, R. B. Mellon, gave together. This was true of the $10,000,000 Mellon Institute, a memorial to their father.

MILLION TO FUND

Unrecorded sums went to the University of Pittsburgh, hospitals and welfare enterprises. The community fund in eight years received more than $1,000,000 from them.

A. W. Mellon spent approximately $20,000,000 for paintings and $10,000,000 for the National Gallery of Art at Washington to house them. Today the collection presented by him to the nation is valued at $50,000,000.

To his two children Mellon was prodigal. In the 1931 federal tax case here was disclosed that he had set up a series of trusts for his son, Paul, and his daughter, Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, totaling approximately $68,000,000.

For his daughter and her husband, Mellon purchased Oak Hill, the historic estate of James Monroe, fifth President of the United States, at Aldie, Va., 35 miles from Washington. The Georgian mansion with 2000 acres was acquired at a reported price of $700,00.

To Paul he gave the Rockeby race horse farm near Upperville, Farquier County, Virginia, in the exclusive center of New York, Washington and Virginia society residents.

SPIRITS IN THE DARK

moss and earth. There are no headstones or markers.

I sat in the half circle of pew-like benches among the shadowy forms of men and women who said nothing and seldom stirred. It was nearing eleven o'clock when a woman in white mounted the concrete steps to the top of the Stump, where potted lilies formed a pulpit.

Her voice came drowsily, a supplication which blended with nature's nighttime symphony—the soft staccato of wood murmurs, crickets' chirps and wind sighing in the foliage.

An owl hooted "Oooo-oo" and the voice trailed on, "O unseen messengers of love, beloved dwellers in God-force, lead us this night from falsehood toward truth."

Heads bowed in the shifting dark and little whispering whistles came from the speaker's direction—soft shushing to which the medium would say, "All right, dear," or "Yes, Yes."

It was weird to me. But it meant solace to the people on the moonlit benches.

Table-Tipping Seance Next

That was last night.

This morning the Rev. Anne Taylor and her cottage companion, Mrs. Gertrude Rowe, a "test-medium" who says she never gives "impressionistic messages" but only those which come audibly to her inner ear, gave us a table-tipping seance.

Clearly they considered such a demonstration as kindergarten play and an ABC in psychic phenomenon.

Table-tipping to a medium is like playing chopsticks to a concert pianist, and they tell me that some of the more psychic citizens of Lily Dale can hardly sit down to lunch or a card game without feeling the furniture squirm.

We retired to the living room of the Frawley home, where there was a lamp-stand of solid mahogany, and ranged ourselves on four sides.

"Rest your finger tips lightly and relax," coached Mrs. Rowe, who is spare and ascetic looking.

For the better part of 15 minutes we sat while Mrs. Taylor, a matter-of-fact religionist, summoned "Red Rose," her Indian-girl guide, with such jocular orders as:

"Come on, honey. Do your stuff."

"More pep, my pretty," demanded Mrs. Taylor and presently the tipsy little table leaned gently toward the Reverend lady in a series of rocking dips.

It was hard to determine the sources of the impulse, and later the non-psychic Mr. Bill Jones and the equally un-mystic me produced the same rocking motions, dips and quivers by pure muscular pressure.

Across the hollow, in the hillside auditorium, 71-year-old Mrs. Maggie Waite, oldest of the Lily Dale mediums and an ordained minister of the Spiritualist Church, was giving the morning message service. She was grandmotherly-looking, with horn rim specs and a soprano quaver.

A heap of folded notes containing the usual pencilled inquiries from the congregation lay on a table and Mrs. Waite fished among them at random, reading the code signatures on the outside as "A-J 13," or "A. E. F."

Mediums Differ In Technique

"Here," a questioner from the floor would answer, holding up a hand. The messages came in the familiar piecemeal fashion—"As I make contact with you from the spirit world I see the letter G," quavered Mrs. Waite, or, "Lucille comes to me," or "A short, jolly-faced man comes singing 'Sweet Adeline!'"

For there is as much difference in platform technique among the resident message-readers of Lily Dale as there is among portrait painters or school teachers.

T. John Kelly, the bantam Welsh psychic, struts around the platform with turkey-cock poise, keeping up a running fire of garrulity and pathos, but always concise and definite in his "spirit transmission."

"That comes to you, Bob Quint," the blindfold medium would say, "from Dr. Ernest T. March. Understand him?"

Nor is there any vagueness or hesitancy with Maude Kline's "revelations," which come with a firecracker directness.

But with the majority of lesser mediums—for the two mentioned are considered the matchless among the Lily Dale mystics, there is a vague fumbling, "You are worried, little lady, about a money matter," or, "You have a respiratory condition which needs attention," or, "A young, light-complected man is here."

So, after a week of listening to twice-a-day message seances, such procedure no longer seemed novel. What mattered much more was the look of uplift in the faces of the older folk who sat craning their necks to see and cupping their ears to hear.

Aging eyes glistened with a quick tear when some "expression from beyond" filtered through the larynx of Mrs. Waite. For, indeed, the mediums maintain that they are merely the vocal instrument for spirit articulation, much as a radio transmits an unseen voice.

"John is here," tremulous Mrs. Waite, who sits surrounded by bowls of fresh cut flowers—blossoms culled from the brilliant gardens of Lily Dale where floral nature flourishes.

"He says 'Mother, if you could only know how often I am with you during each day.'"

A glow spreads over a nearby matron's face, a gray-haired lady clad in cotton print whose hands, veinous under parchment skin, twist a kerchief in her lap.

"Thank you," she says gratefully, beaming at her neighbors.

Through the open door, Lily Dale's candy man can be seen before his sweets shop where salt water taffy, popsicles and sugar sticks are for sale. A small boy comes to the door licking a lollypop. The admission fee is nominal.

Having heard of a vacationing psychic named Fred Larson, who produces "spirit photos" without benefit of a camera, I went to his address on Third street and met a robust, baldish man with brilliant blue eyes and the muscular hands of a craftsman.

Mr. Larson said that he had recently fallen out of a tree while pruning limbs and was so low in "physical magnetism" that he doubted if he could "conduct" any celestial pictures.

His wife, Mrs. Julia Larson, is pastor of a Titusville Spirit Temple, and furnishes the "vibrative force" which her spouse termed his "battery,"—a kind of reservoir for "cosmic energy."

And his guide, said Mr. Larson, is a deceased surgeon named Dr. Albert Dunn from Reno, Nevada, who passed over in 1905 and who now makes a heavenly hobby of imposing the vague features of departed persons on blank photo print paper.

A Lily Dale medium may have only one guide, teacher or control, as his "communicating spirit" is variously called, or he may have many.

For example, Miss Catherine Jungen, 25, and the youngest of the practicing psychics, has an ex-engineer of the Illinois Central railroad who gets angry easily when his transmission is imperfect, so that, she says, she sees a red haze before her eyes.

Mrs. Rowe's control is called Herman.

T. John Kelley has his own father, which is considered unique, another which he calls "The man without a face," and Indian named White Hawk, a Chinaman named Ching, an ex-magician named Gustavasola and several others.

For T. John says that 30 controls is perfection for a medium, though never yet attained, so that he is high man in Lily Dale with nine.

Larson Spirit Photos Unique

The Reverend Julia, an affable lady with middle-age bulges and a folksy manner, showed me a bulging album of filmy faces which ranged from the size of a corn kernel to those large as a silver dollar.

Unlike the "ectoplasmic" photos taken by Horace Hambling, showing distorted faces imbedded in what appears to be a floating mass of entrails, Mr. Larson's pictures appear as if taken in the late twilight, features that peer mistily from gloomy backgrounds.

There are also lettered messages in form and expression like those pencilled on telegraph blanks, and always signed "Dunn" in a leaning scrawl. One of these, which he gave me, white writing on a sepia background, reads:

"The so-called hole in the constellation is an illusion created by magnet fluxes of electrons—Magnus Smith, Dunn."

Mr. Larson, grinning, said he had no notion what the significance might be, but apparently Dr. Dunn was in a gregarious mood that evening, because he was accompanied by seven signatories named Geo., Eldred, Gus, Joe, Raja and Lenn, while along the left edge was a wistful bid for recognition, reading:

"I am here, too, Fritz."

His method of message reception is simple, said Mr. Larson. He would permit any skeptic to purchase a packet of sensitized photo-printing paper, of any brand or size from stock in any store. The factory seal must not be broken.

He merely took the carton between his capacious hands and went to his developing dark room, permitting his sitter to come along and to examine every move.

When he had his hypo-bath ready, he opened the box of papers, dipped the dozen sheets in the solution and there, on one or another, might be your picture—perhaps a hand-lettered message or a filmy face which was sometimes recognized as a relative and sometimes unknown.

But he hadn't tried any for a month, he said, on account of he had fallen from a tree and was low in "magnetism."

Extra Faculty Seen In Spiritualists

The further one goes in Lily Dale, the more matters become "curiouser and curiouser," as Alice remarked in Wonderland. Because Mr. Larson, like the faith healer, Dr. C. A. Burgess, charges no fee and makes no profit from his quaint "faculty." And while even the most devoted Spiritualist here confesses and deplores the presence of charlatanry among certain unregistered mediums, they defend vigorously the authenticity of their majority. In fact, many of the mediums are still members of other faiths, as in the case of Mrs. Gabriel, the wife of a Presbyterian minister.

Whatever the "mental something" is, there is an extra dimensional faculty in some of these folk which has not yet been measured by science. I say that as a professional skeptic, who, after sifting through much that is tricky-hunk, has discovered much that is metaphysical and bewildering.

The conversation had been casual chin-chat, when Mr. Ceney observed:

"There is a small girl standing beside you, Jones. She carries a paper bag in one hand and presses the other to her head. She says she passed into spirit life through an accident. She is your sister."

Jones, visibly startled, said nothing, and the talk drifted back to perfunctory channels. But later he told me that he had, indeed, had a small sister struck fatally by an automobile some 20 years ago while carrying a bag of doughnuts from a corner grocery.

Nor is the explanation made more simple by the fact that we were in Lily Dale "incognito" without revealing our publishing connections or town addresses.

Yet I was in Psychic City less than four days before T. John Kelly gave me a family history, complete with description and data, that would have required a month's research by a detective.

Most of Colony's Folk "Average"

I am frank to say that I slept in Lily Dale with one eye peeping over the coverlet.

There are, of course, occasional Dallans who show evidence of sexless neuroses, easy addicts to their emotions.

But the large majority of the residents are normal-seeming folk with no indication of cracked teapots, who accept most of the odd phenomena as evidence of authentic mediumship and bewail what they term a "scattering of quackery."

Perhaps at the moment there are several scores of mediums on the reservation, some of them dowdy and semi-illiterate and some immaculate and intellectual-looking.

For mediumship, they declare, is a heaven-sent gift at birth and evidenced by the power to see visions (clairvoyance), hear "voices" (clairaudience) or feel unseen hands (clairsentience).

A clairvoyant declares she sees a spirit as clearly as a lay-person sees another of his human kind. For example, Mrs. Rowe related how, the other evening, she was sitting in her cottage when the door opened and a middle-aged man walked in. Startled, she said she had asked:

"Haven't you made a mistake?"

"No," Mrs. Rowe says the personage replied, "we never make mistakes," and then she recognized the visitor as a "spirit."

Her nerves were still jangly, said the medium, because the supernal caller told her some personal gossip which was both intimate and shocking.

Unseen Friends Give Lake Shivers

So, the reader can imagine the state of one's nerves after being informed repeatedly that one is surrounded by a group of invisible forms in various caressing postures. It's agitating enough to be told the "Emma" is written across your chest in livid red.

But when a prescient person like Frank Ceney describes all the forms that follow the passers-by on his sidewalk, it becomes a little jumpy and you get the habit of peering jerkily over a shoulder while walking after dark between the street lights.

"There is a heavy-set man with a mustache and a gold watch chain leaning over your shoulder," said an unknown psychic one afternoon at the Forest Temple. "His name is Andy."

I said, somewhat testily, that I didn't know any Andys, either here or there.

"Well," said the mystic, with a take-it-or-leave-it attitude, "that's what he says, anyway."

Then our twitchy nerves got the worst jolt when an empty rocking chair in the Fox cottage began to rock and Miss Flo Cottrell said it was caused by Mrs. Jones' grandfather. I must tell you about that Sunday.

The seventh and concluding article in Austen Lake's series on the Lily Dale spiritualists will be published in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser. In it will be told a strange story of a "rap" medium; of the education of little children in mediumistic lore, and the tale of how the more famed practitioners in the village of strange voices first discovered their "gift." Don't miss this last installment in NEXT SUNDAY'S BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER.

Eobie Guide

It is well that we get back to the things worth while and you will find much to be thankful for as time goes on. Your faith in the healing power of the Spirit world will prove much and you and yours will be healed by faith alone. Keep the faith in the great plan and as time goes on the revelation will be beyond all your expectations. Now retire and rest this drawing will be finished at a later date and you will be able to see the wisdom of the extra sittings. Now good night and God bless you and yours and peace be with you as ever EOBIE.

Good Night
Eobie. Sept. 4-35

ANCIENT EGYPTIAN HER PAINTING GUIDE

Attention, Lily Dale

Hanson, Aug. 27 (AP)—A cheery, "hello," greeted Paul Scholz as he stepped from his doorway and confounded him as there was no one in sight.

The voice again mystified Scholz. Then he peered into the branches of a tree and observed—you guessed it—a parrot.

Heap Big G. O. P. Hold Rain Dance

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Republicans are holding their 1940 rain dance a little early. Chief Hamilton went out on the desert and captured fifteen snakes from as many states.

Thunder Bird Hoover wrote the prayer for heavy showers in the Atlantic Monthly. Only a Republican of the elephant tribe can dance with the sacred snakes.

The thunder bird hopes for a cloudburst of ballots for the next election. That last time all he got was a drizzle.

GIN, SIN DEATH YOUTH FREED AFTER 6 YEARS

Pendleton, Ind., Aug. 27—After having served only a little more than six years of a one-to-ten year sentence, Virgil Kirkland, principal in the 1930 "gin and sin" death of pretty Arlene Draves at Gary was released from the state reformatory today in the face of a storm of protests.

One of the most hideous crimes of the prohibition era, this case attracted nation-wide attention as an alleged example of what bootleg liquor was doing to flaming youth.

Kirkland, now 26, but at the time of the crime a Gary high school football star, was released, according to Reformatory Superintendent A. F. Miles, after the reformatory trustees had recommended the action and the Indiana State Welfare Department had approved.

BITTER PROTESTS

Bitter opposition to his release had been voiced by the public ever since word leaked out that he was to be freed.

Several previous attempts to secure parole for Kirkland had been made unsuccessfully, the first one after he had served the minimum sentence.

All Gary shuddered when the crime of which Kirkland eventually was convicted "broke" in November of 1930.

Eighteen-year-old Arlene Draves, high school girl, had collapsed at a gin party held by several youths and girls.

Five youths, including Kirkland, had rushed her three miles to the office of a doctor. When the doctor pronounced the girl dead, the five had leaped into their car and fled.

The physician pursued them, firing two shots, he told police. He had gone to authorities and given the boys' names after he lost the chase and they had failed to return.

Police further shocked the town when they announced the girl had been attacked and that Kirkland had confessed to mistreating her near a lunch stand.

SAVED BY JURY'S ERROR

And there came more of a shock when the youth allegedly charged that several of his companions at the fateful party also had attacked the girl.

At Kirkland's first trial he was found guilty of murder and the jury recommended a life sentence.

He won a second trial, however, and in this a confused jury returned a verdict of guilty of "assault and battery with intent to attack," erroneously believing, one juror afterward explained, that this carried the death penalty.

NEW AMOSKEAG PAYS 125 P. C.

Bridges, resulted in the report that liquidation might be necessary. It was recommended that a sacrifice be made by the bondholders in order to reopen the mills.

LIQUIDATION ORDERED

While relief rolls in the city began to mount steadily, composed to a great extent of former Amoskeag workers, reorganization plans were suggested and withdrawn. Finally in July, 1936, Arthur Black, master, reported to Federal Judge George C. Sweeney in Boston that the Amoskeag mills should be liquidated.

Liquidation followed and Frederick C. Dumaine was appointed treasurer of the company. The Amoskeag Industries, Inc., was formed and beginning last fall space in the huge, idle plant began to be sold.

That the first year's operations were a success was evidenced by today's announcement.

In their announcement, the directors declared that the amount of stock issued and outstanding which was entitled to the dividend was $543,300. The dividend will be payable August 28 to stockholders of record August 27.

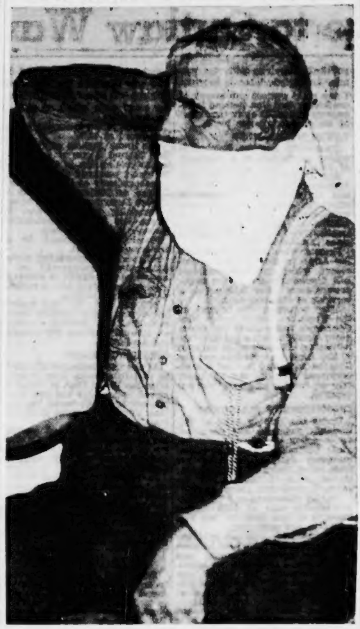
JOBS FOR 4000

It was stated that the dividend was declared at this time because the federal undistributed profits tax imposes heavy additional taxes if the profits are not distributed in dividends. The dividends may be either in cash or obligations.

"As a result of the year's business," the directors' statement declared, "approximately half of the 6,000,000 square feet of manufacturing space has been sold or leased to 29 different enterprises which will give employment to nearly 4000 persons."

According to the statement, the sales of mills, machinery and tenement property of the company during its first year of business, ending August 31, 1937, have amounted to approximately $2,400,000 and the cost of doing business, including provision for taxes has been approximately $500,000.

BOUND BY YEGGS



Ernest Armstrong, 68-year-old night worker at the Metropolitan Ice Company plant in Wellesley, demonstrates how he was bound and gagged early today by two safe-crackers, who escaped with $1000. The yeggs smashed open two safes.

YEGGS BIND WORKER, LOOT SAFES OF $1000

Two bandits, who apologized for their roughness today bound and gagged a night worker of the Newton-Wellesley division of the Metropolitan Ice Company, Worcester street, Wellesley, cracked open two safes and escaped with $1000.

The night man, Ernest Armstrong, 68, of Washington street, West Newton, an employe of the ice company for 40 years, told police he worked late and decided to sleep on an office counter to await a ride home in the morning.

He was awakened about 3 a. m. by noises outside the window and the glare of a flashlight.

"Let us in or we'll shoot you," he was told, although he could not see the men through the window because of the darkness.

Once inside the men took Armstrong upstairs and bound and gagged him with towels and wire.

MEN WORE MASKS

"We're sorry we have to do this," one bandit told Armstrong who later said that neither was armed although one wore a handkerchief over his face.

While one man stood guard over Armstrong the other knocked the combinations off two safes and then pried the doors open. One safe was in the manager's private office, the other in the main office. The men were in the plant about a half hour, Armstrong reported.

At 5 a. m. Armstrong was found by Lee Dickee of Cleveland road, Wellesley, another employe. The victim said the bandits knew their way around the office.

BANDITS FOILED

Bandits were foiled today in their attempts to crack safes in a Back Bay theater and a Roxbury supply store, police reported.

Arriving at work this morning, Thomas Morse, of Magazine street, Cambridge, janitor at the Stuart Theater, Huntington avenue, found thieves had entered through a rear door during the night and had tried to force the safe in the manager's office.

Police also revealed an unsuccessful attempt to burglarize the John F. Fitz Supply Store on Cedar street, Roxbury.

Doubt Soviet Fliers Down in Alaska

Fairbanks, Alaska, August 27 (AP)—Pacific Alaska Airways pilots said today they were convinced Sigismund Levaneffsky and his five Soviet companions never reached Alaska on their attempted transpolar flight from Moscow to Oakland, Cal. The fliers have been missing two weeks.

Three PAA planes have covered 100,000 miles of northern Alaska without finding a trace of the missing plane.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, carrying on the search in a Russian-owned flying boat, expressed belief the Levaneffsky plane was down about 500 miles on the North American side of the North Pole.

Mysterious Fever Hits Liner's Crew

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The 400 members of the crew of the Hamburg-American liner Hansa were kept aboard ship today after she ended a voyage from Germany, when health officers found 16 seamen suffering from "fever of an unidentified nature."

Their illness was not announced until after the ship had docked and all passengers had left the vessel.

Trotzky Escapes Armed Raiders

Mexico City, Aug. 27 (INS)—Four armed men made an unsuccessful attempt early today to break into the home at Coyoacan of Leon Trotsky, exiled Bolshevik leader, according to a report to the police.

One of Trotsky's guards was shot down resisting the raiders, who fled after an exchange of shots.

Friends of Trotsky expressed the belief that the intruders were Communist agents who have sought to put an end—by assassination—to Trotsky's anti-Stalinist activities.

Trotsky took the incident calmly, but Mrs. Trotsky was badly frightened.

There have been rumors recently that Trotsky was "on the spot," and that an attempt might be made on his life.

Twenty policemen and detective usually guard the Trotsky house and at times the windows have been barricaded with bricks.

BATTLE RAGES FOR KEY TO SHANGHAI

threat by Japan to blockade Chinese ports, Hull said American consular officials had confined an announcement that Japan intended to enforce a blockade.

"PEACEFUL BLOCKADE"

The Secretary added, in a press conference discussion, that this government considers it is now in the position of having been officially informed of "peaceful blockade" intentions.

The government, Hull said, is continuing to assemble "full facts" as to the effects of the operation of such a blockade.

The official advice to Japan and China holding them responsible for injury to any American interest was considered to mean that this government has no intention of withdrawing from the Orient.

POLICY UNCHANGED

Informed persons said they believed the United States was looking upon the Far Eastern crisis as an incident which it would not permit to change the long range plans of this country in international affairs.

On the basis of this opinion, it was assumed by observers that the United States believed withdrawal of its interests from the Far East would weaken its position as an advocate of world peace.

"Death Battle" Raging For Key to Shanghai

Shanghai, Aug. 27 (AP)—Crack Chinese and Japanese divisions fought a furious, costly battle today to turn Lotien, key point in China's defense lines about Shanghai, into a heap of ashes.

The tide of battle see-sawed from side to side. Both Chinese and Japanese rushed reinforcements to the desperate fighting 12 miles northwest of Shanghai. Thousands of casualties were sustained by both sides.

Japanese, after first being hurled back into Lion forest, reported they had rallied and occupied the town late this afternoon, gaining a foothold for a drive into the Kiangwan district, just northwest of Shanghai proper.

While the battle raged, Great Britain's ambassador to China, Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, lay close to death from wounds suffered when his automobile was attacked by a Japanese airplane.

His life, and possibly relations between Japan and Britain, depended on the success of a blood transfusion from a United States sailor.

Japan hurled wave after wave of attackers against two Chinese "death" divisions, forced to hold Lotien lines until reinforcements of three full divisions could arrive. The Chinese command ordered second line machine guns trained on the backs of divisions holding the line. At any sign of retreat, the machine gunners were told to fire.

3000 JAPANESE KILLED

Chinese said 3000 Japanese were killed or wounded in the battle.

Owing to the unexpectedly heavy casualties suffered by the Japanese, a fleet of hospital ships was ordered dispatched from the homeland. The first unit tied up today off the Bund near the U. S. S. Augusta, flagship of the American Asiatic fleet, prominently displaying the Red Cross emblem.

Although Sir Hughe was reported to have rested "fairly well" this morning, he was not considered out of danger. He was suffering acute pain. Doctors indicated that his recovery hinged on the result of the emergency blood transfusion yesterday from H. A. Thomson, a United States navy pharmacist mate from Mountain View, Cal.

WIFE SPEEDS TO SIR HUGHE

Lady Knatchbull-Hugessen was rushing to her husband's side aboard a British destroyer from her summer home. She was expected to arrive tomorrow.

The only visitors the ambassador was allowed to see today was the Japanese ambassador, Shigeru Kawagoe, who called this morning to explain the attack by the Japanese airplanes was "all a mistake." The Japanese envoy said the pilots were unable to see the British flag flying from the ambassador's car as he sped from Nanking to Shanghai.

The British envoy had planned his meeting with Kawagoe for a different setting and different cause. Sir Hughe was speeding to Shanghai on an emergency mission of peace. Although it was not so described officially, it was generally understood he intended to see Kawagoe in the hope of ending the conflict which has raged for two weeks about Shanghai.

Japanese military, naval and diplomatic officials seemed to sense the gravity of the situation. All of them called to leave cards and sent flowers. Among this morning's callers was the commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, Admiral Harry Yarnell.

Full Satisfaction Demanded by Britain

London, Aug. 27 (AP)—Authoritative quarters said the British government's demand for "full satisfaction" for the wounding of its ambassador to China was presented today to the Japanese ambassador to London.

The demand was understood to have been made by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to Shigeru Yoshida, the Japanese envoy, when the latter called at the Foreign Office to tender officially Japan's regrets.

Ambassador Yoshida spent half an hour with the foreign secretary. Indicating the public interest in the Anglo-Japanese tension, a crowd gathered at the Downing street entrance to the Foreign Office to witness the envoy's arrival and departure.

Earlier in the day Quo Tai-Chi, the Chinese ambassador, had visited Eden.

Informed sources said that in spite of high feeling in Britain over the attack on the ambassador, no further action on the part of the British government was to be expected today.

The British attitude was one of "exasperation and indignation," these quarters said.

Persons close to the government emphasized that the possibilities of obtaining "full satisfaction" were "very limited." This strengthened a widespread belief that Britain might be compelled to withdraw its ambassador, Sir Robert L. Craigie, from Tokyo.

The fact that the Japanese ambassador waited until today to make his official call did not improve public feeling toward Japan.

Nanking Air Raid Kills Hundreds

Nanking, China, Aug. 27 (AP)—Japanese airplanes killed nearly 150 civilians, most of them coolies, in a daylight air raid today, and swooped down again on this Chinese capital tonight while the diplomatic corps was giving a banquet to Nelson T. Johnson, American ambassador.

The screech of air defense sirens failed to stop the banquet, marking Johnson's 30th anniversary of entrance into the diplomatic service.

Earlier, Jonhson and other foreign envoys had asked the Japanese to confine the raids to military objectives.

GEN. FRANCO SHIFTS DRIVE IN SPAIN

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 27 (AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco, worried by the Spanish government's lusty drive near Zaragoza, was reported by insurgent sources today to be speeding a motorized column from conquered Santander to the Aragon front.

These reports said the column hurriedly packed up and rolled out of the Biscayan seaport which it helped occupy yesterday, leaving other brigades of Franco's 100,000-strong northern army to prosecute cleanup operations east and west of Santander.

The motorized force will be thrown against the Madrid-Valencia army in the northeast, where Zaragoza was being attacked from two directions, apparently in a government attempt to make up for the telling loss of Santander.

The Insurgent communique itself admitted there was fighting on the Aragon front both north and south of the Ebro river. The Ebro flows past Zaragoza, one of Franco's important bases and one-time capital of the old Aragon kingdom.

Franco's column on wheels had more than 200 miles to cover in its drive southeast from Santander to Zaragoza.

An Insurgent communique said yesterday's attacks in the Zaragoza sector had been repulsed but government reports told a different story.

A Valencia communique said crack troops had swept to within four miles of the heavily fortified city, flanking it from the north and south to squeeze out the Insurgents.

Franco also was reported shifting the aerial armada he used to blast away Santander's defenses to meet the government's big Aragon push.

Belgium Seeks U. S. Aid In Move to Outlaw War

In the last of a series of special articles from European capitals on the prospects of war, Seymour Berkson, night editor of International News Service, reveals the important rôle Belgium is playing in the pacification of western Europe.

By SEYMOUR BERKSON

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

Brussels, Aug. 27 (INS)—Belgium, victim No. 1 of the World War, is taking the initiative for a new world peace movement in which she hopes to enlist the aid of the United States.

Her scholarly Premier Paul Van Zeeland, whom all Europe is eyeing as a rising star in statesmanship, returned recently from Washington where he conferred with President Roosevelt.

It is Premier Van Zeeland's firm conviction, ardently supported by King Leopold III, that the main road to peace in Europe is economic rather than political.

TRADE BAN TO WAR

He believes a nation is not likely to attack another nation with which she is enjoying a profitable exchange of commodities, a healthy balance of trade. He is convinced that economic disarmament—stabilization of currencies, lowering of tariff walls and other artificial obstacles to free trade between nations—must precede any consideration of the problem of military disarmament.

With the support of Britain and France, Van Zeeland has been busy sounding out the major governments of the world on the possibilities of an international economic accord that would give Europe a new spiritual lease on peace.

I visited Premier Van Zeeland in his private office and chatted with him for nearly an hour about the European situation. While this was not an interview because political interviews with the premier are strictly taboo in Belgium, I can state without any breach of confidence that Van Zeeland is extremely optimistic as to the future of his economic peace plans.

TAKES NO CHANCES

Meanwhile, however, Belgium is taking no chances of a repetition of 1914.

She is rearming by leaps and bounds—increasing both her land and air forces—in a determined effort to cement her neutrality with armed force rather than "scraps of paper," as European treaties have come to be regarded since the World War.

Premier Van Zeeland is a leading force in this Belgian rearmament, which he feels confident will discourage any of the major powers from using Belgium as a corridor of invasion again.

After watching the collapse of the Versailles treaty under Nazi Germany's rearmament and subsequent remilitarization of the "demilitarized" Rhineland in defiance of the League of Nations and the Locarno pact, Van Zeeland became convinced Belgium can no longer rely on "scraps of paper" for her security.

INDEPENDENT MEASURES

Under the guiding hand of Van Zeeland, Belgium has embarked on a policy of guaranteeing her own neutrality by independent measures designed to keep her from being drawn in on either side in the event of another war between France and Germany.

Belgian statesmen cite the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 as an example of how Belgium can best maintain her neutrality.

In that war, Belgium held the military balance of power between the two opposing armies and neither dared to violate her boundaries. Germany had 360,000 men under arms while France had 290,000. Belgium with 100,000 trained soldiers provided an equilibrium between the two forces—and neither France nor Germany dared to use Belgium as a short cut.

Somehow the lesson learned in 1870 was forgotten in 1914 when Belgium had a pitifully small standing army with which to defend her neutrality.

But that lesson is serving as the watchword of 1937.

The same realism with which Van Zeeland is rearming Belgium is also guiding him in his program for world economic disarmament.

Independently of the discredited League of Nations, he hopes to achieve through economic channels a foundation for peace which the league has failed to accomplish through political channels.

Premier Van Zeeland is no dreamy-eyed idealist.

He is a practical-minded statesman, whose background as a banker and an expert in economic problems has given him a realistic view of world politics.

Tall and lean, his mild manner offset by a rather bristling brown mustache, Van Zeeland cherishes an especial fondness for America and Americans.

CALLED "DEALER"

As the first exchange scholar to be sent to America from Belgium after the World War, in which he served as a soldier and was taken prisoner by the Germans, Van Zeeland studied economics at Princeton University.

Some of his political enemies have accused him of being a disciple of the Roosevelt "New Deal" and of trying out "American experiments" in Belgium.

In the internal affairs of Belgium he has established a remarkable record safeguarding his country's economic stability in the face of a devaluated franc and maintaining an order throughout Belgium markedly in contrast to the disorder in neighboring France.

Bandit Hunted

Fall River, Aug. 27—Police were today seeking a holdup man who forced Albert Fortier, 65, manager of a South Main street hardware store, to open the cash register and fled when he found no money within.

Nazis Again 'Warn' Mundelein

Berlin, Aug. 27 (AP)—The organ of Adolf Hitler's storm troops, "Der S. A. Mann," again attacked George, Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago today.

The Cardinal has called Hitler "a paperhanger," and has assailed Nazi Germany's campaign of putting Catholic priests on trial for "immorality" as a vicious type of atrocity propaganda.

"Der S. A. Mann" declared Cardinal Mundelein was "backing" a new motion picture which would depict monastery life. It "warned" him not to be "too hasty," because, it hinted, Germany is about to furnish "abundant new material" about life behind monastery walls.

This was interpreted as a thinly veiled prediction of new trials of priests and lay brothers on N[illegible] accusations of immorality.

What some of America's aquatic stars say about Camels

SPRINGBOARD ACE. Lovely Jane Fauntz Manske, of Chicago, says: "It's Camels for me! Tense competition and all the changes of diet when traveling are liable to upset digestion. But I smoke Camels at mealtimes and after and my digestion runs smoothly."

The best of meals tastes better and digests easier when you have an abundant flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids so vital to good digestion. Smoking Camels encourages this flow—helps you enjoy a sense of well-being. Steady smokers say: "Camels set me right!"

HAROLD ("DUTCH") SMITH, who holds Olympic diving championships, would "walk a mile for a Camel!" "I find a great deal of pleasure in Camels," says "Dutch." "I long ago discovered that smoking a Camel restores my flow of energy after a strenuous exhibition—gives me a 'lift.'"

THREE-TIME OLYMPIC WINNER in the spectacular high-diving event. Dorothy Poynton Hill, of Los Angeles—a steady Camel smoker—says: "I prefer Camels because they don't get on my nerves. And," she adds, "I like Camels because they have such a rich, delicate flavor and never tire my taste."

"PETE" DESJARDINS—another famous diver—speaking: "Divers like a mild cigarette that doesn't upset their nerves. That's why I prefer to smoke Camels. They never jangle my nerves."

LENORE KIGHT WINGARD—a champion of champions. She has broken 7 World's Records—16 Nat'l Records—in speed swimming. Lenore comments on smoking: "Camels are certainly mild. They never jangle my nerves."

AQUAPLANE EXPERT. Here's Miss Gloria Wheeden, who can do hand-stands on an aquaplane. She is about to enjoy a picnic luncheon on the speed boat. "Smoking Camels and eating go together," Miss Wheeden says. "I smoke Camels at mealtimes and enjoy the sense of well-being that good digestion brings me."

FLOODS SWELL RIVERS IN 2 STATES

Wellsboro, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP)—Northern Pennsylvania streams, swollen by a week of rain and a storm of cloudburst proportions last night, claimed one life and caused heavy property damage in lowlands

Jonathan Foltz, 23, a lieutenant at the Darling Rock Civilian Conservation Corps camp, was swept to death in the waters of Kelsey creek while attempting to rescue a man.

The Wellsboro Water Company reported three broken mains, and Tioga gas lines were damaged. Electric power failed about midnight.

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—A 24-hour rainfall caused creeks to overflow in western New York today, bringing fear to residents of a repetition of the disastrous 1935 floods.

Numerous bridges were washed away in the area extending from Watkins Glen, N. Y., on the north, 100 miles south to Wellsboro, Pa., and as far west as Painted Post, N. Y.

Several houses were washed away at Hendy Hollow, N. Y., five miles southwest of this city.

Families were removed, many of them from second story windows, at Pine Valley, N. Y., ten miles north of Elmira, where six feet of water surged through the main street, and at Montour Falls, N. Y., where the electric power plant was stopped by the waters, plunging the village into darkness.

FACING NOOSE, DYER CRACKS

Los Angeles, Aug. 27 (AP)—It came to Albert Dyer today that he may have to pay on the gallows for the lives of three little girls.

It had been one of those things with him—one of those things that happens to somebody else—until a jury convicted him of killing and attacking Melba and Madeline Everett, formerly of Dorchester, Mass., and Jeanette Stephens.

Today he cracked.

"I got it! I got it! I got the rope!" He screamed down the county jail corridor.

He threw himself on his cot and sobbed.

It took the jury 44 hours to return the guilty verdict. Death sentence is mandatory, since the jury did not recommend life imprisonment.

Because the three children were killed before a state law prescribing lethal gas in executions went into effect, Dyer will be sentenced to hang.

Savants to Study 'Nerveless' Folk In Guiana Jungle

New York, August 27 (AP)—Primitive people, Dr. William Hall Holder, staff surgeon of the American Museum of Natural History, said today, undoubtedly suffer less from "nerves" than those who live under the high pressure of modern civilization.

"As a result," he said, "they suffer from fewer breakdowns of the nervous system and are afflicted less with heart trouble and diseases common to those who live under stress and strain."

To study at first hand the primitive tribal life, diseases and drugs of Amazon Indians in South America, Dr. Holden is heading a scientific expedition leaving New York today for British Guiana.

The expedition, to reach its objective hundreds of miles inland in rugged jungle territory, necessarily must cut its own trail to a great extent. White men never have yet foot where the scientists expect to go.

It was somewhere in this trackless interior that Paul Redfern, aviator, was believed to have been forced down and lost on his attempted flight in 1927 from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro.

Dr. Holden said that with radio equipment being taken along the party hopes to be able to broadcast from the jungles.

Bridges to Speak At Western Rallies

Concord, N. H., Aug. 27 (AP)—U. S. Senator H. Styles Bridges will not devote all of his vacation to resting.

The senator, his office announced today, has accepted invitations to speak at Republican rallies in four or five Western states. He is scheduled to speak in Missouri and Illinois and at a rally of Montana and South Dakota party workers. Ohio and one or two other states may be added to the itinerary.

Seers Get No Respect

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The National Association of Fortune Tellers postponed its convention, scheduled yesterday at Palisades Park, until next Monday.

Something went wrong with the weather predictions and it rained.

Film Star Breaks Arm For Dog

Diana Manners Hurt By Light, Rover O. K.

DIANA MANNERS

AFGHAN HOUND

Hollywood, Aug. 27 (INS)—Diana Manners, film actress, was in a hospital here today with a broken arm, and all because she saved a dog from injury.

While the actress was posing for still pictures with an Afghan hound a high arc light accidentally turned over.

Miss Manners feared the dog might be injured and threw herself in front of the animal. Her arm was broken near the shoulder when the light crashed against her.

The dog was not hurt.

Fair and Warmer To Follow Rain

Cloudy skies and rain today greeted residents of the Greater Boston area. The showers were expected to continue during the day.

Weather bureau attaches reported an average temperature of 69—still quite a bit above the record low for the date set in 1880, when the record plunged to 47. The highest recorded for the date came in 1881, when 91 degrees heated the town.

The humidity was 81, 10 degrees above normal. Clear and warmer weather was predicted for tomorrow.

Washington 'Flood' Victims Go Home

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—Two hundred Washington residents went back home today after a night of fear that water backed up from overtaxed drains might flood their houses.

Five days of almost constant rainfall were brought to a climax last evening in a brief storm that added 1.26 inches of rain. The water reached the ground floor in some houses, but today the rain had stopped and danger appeared gone.

Montague, Free, Vanishes on Trip

Elizabeth, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—Freed in $25,000 bail pending trial on seven-year-old robbery charges, John Montague, Hollywood golf wizard, presumably was on his way today to Syracuse, N. Y., to visit his ill mother.

Montague was released from the Essex County jail here yesterday after State Supreme Court Justice O. Byron Brewster admitted him to bail, furnished by a bonding company.

Baron Rothschild, Noted Banker, Dies

London, Aug. 27 (INS)—Baron Rothschild, a member of the famous banking family and a well-known author and expert on zoology, died today at his home at Tring after a lengthy illness. He was 68.

TORSO MURDER 'LABORATORY' HUNTED

Cleveland, Aug. 27 (AP)—Police searched today for what Detective Lieutenant Michael Blackwell said "may be the torso murder laboratory" of a homicidal maniac who has slain and dissected 10 persons.

Blackwell said he learned that a 40-year-old mill worker, held for questioning after boasting of his dissecting prowess during a drinking bout, was frequently absent from his rooming house, and told companions he had lodgings in another neighborhood.

3 INSTRUMENTS STOLEN

The man, police said, stole a set of surgical instruments before his discharge from a hospital, where he dissected bodies for autopsies. Police found no such instruments in a search of the man's room, Blackwell said.

Authorities ordered a chemical analysis of a fluid which an acquaintance of the man said the latter gave him as a medicine. The acquaintance said he was afraid to take it. Chemists said the fluid appeared to be formaldehyde, in which a white powder was partially dissolved.

The man made a general denial of all statements attributed to him, Blackwell said, and claimed he did not prepare the fluid.

WIFE'S AID FAILS

The officer adde dthat he was inclined to discount a statement from the man's estranged wife that he was a "confirmed liar," on the ground that she sought to protect him.

The first of thecity's torso victims was discovered in September, 1934, soon after the man in custody was discharged by the hospital. Only two of the butchered bodies have been identified.

4 MEET DEATH IN AIR CRASH

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—State Assemblyman Pritchard H. Strong, 30, wealthy Rochester, N. Y., aviation enthusiast, his wife and two companions were killed early today when their airplane crashed in fog and rain while trying to land at the airport here.

The ship was piloted by Clarence Robinson, Rochester, while the third passenger was Charles H. Judson, Rochester investment counsel.

Lack of R. I. Relief Blamed in Fatal Shooting of Boy

Providence, Aug. 27—Lack of adequate relief was "the real crime" in the fatal shooting of Paul Romanelli, 16, Providence youth, by a railroad policeman as he picked up coal in a railroad yard last week, former Representative Angelo A. Adamo, of that city, declared today.

The speaker said the boy had been forced to take the coal in order to supplement the 7.50 weekly relief allowance given his parents and his six brothers and sisters.

Speaking at a protest meeting sponsored at the Greeley street school by the Confederation of Independent Italian Societies, ex-Representative Adamo urged prosecution of the railroad detective.

"It was the breakdown of the relief system in the city of Providence that caused the death of young Romanelli," he said.

Denouncing the shooting, the meeting voted unanimously to petition Attorney General John P. Hartigan to "bring to an early trial and punishment the person responsible for the death of Paul Romanelli."

A detective, Marsden Nottage, 25, of Cranston, was said by police to have admitted shooting the boy. He is under $25,000 bail pending trial on a manslaughter charge.

U. S. Opens Drive On Dope Pedlars

Federal narcotic agents, in cooperation with Boston police, today launched a drive against dope pedlers operating in the South End and Back Bay districts.

William E. Clark, chief of the New England division of the Federal narcotic bureau, and Police Sergeant Frank Sliney and Special Officer Daniel Curran held a conference today at the Federal building in connection with the drive.

Assistant United States Attorney William F. McCarthy expects to present a report on the drive to the grand jury, when it convenes next month.

Admits Brief Baby Kidnap

Chicago, Aug. 27 (INS)—An anonymous letter in the hands of the parents of Diane Lucas, 3 months old, today apparently explained the strange kidnaping of the child earlier in the week.

Snatched from her carriage in front of a neighborhood store, she was returned the next afternoon.

The letter purported to have come from a love-starved woman, who said her own baby died four months ago, shortly after her husband was killed in an auto accident.

Now you take a problem like that of Bertram Herbert, who runs a gen'l store at Cook's Corner, Chelsea, and you're pretty liable to get all snarled up and wonder if it's you—or what . . . This shop of Herbert's (he sez his name in a French accent) is at Washington ave. and Woodlawn st., but don't ask him what town he's of because he's been trying to find that out himself for too long . . .

Herbert pays his gas and elec. bills in Chelsea and his water bill to Revere, but he pays real est. taxes to both Chelsea and Revere . . . His store has three addresses, two of 'em in Revere, the other Chelsea . . . Four carriers deliver his mail, two from each town . . .

Anyway, the thing came to boil when some scalawag lobbed some rocks through his store windows and he screamed for police . . . There came, a-running, cops not only from Revere and Chelsea, but from Everett as well—the shop being less than 100 yds. from that city line . . . So then a nice argument ensued between the John-laws . . . Both towns (Chelsea and Revere) take his dough but none of the cops would take care of his plaint for a while . . . Finally the Chelsea gendarmes accepted the case, but by that time Herbert was beyond caring . . .

Burns-Raye In 'Arkansas Traveler'

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1937, International News Service

Los Angeles, Aug. 27 (INS).— Next co-starring vehicle for Bob Burns and Martha Raye will be Opie Reid's famous old humorous classic, "The Arkansas Traveler."

For over fifty years the little paper-backed book was a best seller and everyone old enough to read was familiar with the collection of rustic anecdotes.

Harriet Parsons

"Mountain Music," the first Burns-Raye co-starrer, has been cleaning up all over the country. Produced as an unpretentious little program picture, it amazed Paramount's powers-that-be by turning out to be a box-office wow.

Gloria Dickson, who made her debut as the tragic young wife in "They Won't Forget," is wanted for the star spot in "Wise Tomorrow," scheduled for an early September opening on Broadway. Producer Barney Klawans is negotiating with Warners, who have Gloria under contract.

Amazing the progress this youngster has made since finishing high school one brief year ago. A Warner Brothers talent scout spotted her in a federal theater project and she stepped right into a contract and a lead.

That deal between the Marx Brothers and RKO is still hanging fire. Studio wants the mad trio for its $255,000 comedy, "Room Service," but so far hasn't been able to come to terms with them. Meanwhile, M-G-M, having paid George S. Kaufman $100,000 to rewrite his Broadway musical satire, "Of Thee I Sing," to fit the unique talents of Groucho, Harpo and Chico, is having an acute case of jitters. According to a local gagster, a Metro sentry is stationed outside the rival studio with the Kaufman script and waves it temptingly in the Marxian pans every time they go in for a conference.

If negotiations between M-G-M and Oscar Homolka pan out, Norma Shearer will make "Marie Antoinette" in Europe after all. When Charles Laughton was found to be unavailable for the role of Louis XVI, it was believed the picture would be made here on the Metro Culver City lot. Paul Muni was at one time mentioned for the part, but his plans for a world cruise nipped this possibility in the bud. The many fans eagerly awaiting Miss Shearer's return to the screen are hoping this difficult casting problem will be settled down. So am I.

A line or two: Dick Purcell is being considered for one of the dizzy playwrights in "Boy Meets Girl" which Warners will produce on a smaller scale than planned since Marion Davies has nixed it as a starring vehicle. Mabel Todd may edge Marie Wilson out of the femme lead . . . Max Gordon will be on hand for Walter Huston's opening in "Miles of Heaven" at the Lodero theater in Santa Barbara and if he likes the show will produce it in New York.

Evelyn Daw, new prima donna who makes her debut in James Cagney's "Something to Sing About," may go from movies to the Met, thus reversing the usual procedure. Earl Lewis, Met treasurer, has invited the South Dakota redhead to appear before the opera air program audition board in New York.

'Saratoga' Comes To Olympia

"Saratoga," Metro's screen triumph combining exciting romance with the thrills of horse racing and co-starring Clark Gable and the late Jean Harlow, will share honors with "Married Before Breakfast," novel comedy romance, co-featuring Robert Young and Florence Rice, on the new Washington Street Olympia double feature program beginning tomorrow and continuing through Tuesday.

STAN LAUREL OLIVER HARDY

Hilarity rules the RKO Boston screen today with that sterling pair of fun stars, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, romping all over the west as they postpone their prospecting to hitch-hike in a stage coach to deliver the deed to a gold mine. It all happens in "Way Out West."

Melodies Linger After Viewing 'Make a Wish'

Star of "Make a Wish," the billing to the contrary notwithstanding, is unseen Oscar Straus, whose lovely melodies will linger long after you've quit the Keith Memorial.

THE CAST

Chip	Bobby Breen
Selden	Basil Rathbone
Irene	Marion Claire
Moreta	Henry Armetta
Mays	Ralph Forbes
Brennan	Leon Errol
Pee Wee	Billy Lee
Joseph	Donald Meek
Dr. Stevens	Herbert Rawlinson
Moe	Leonid Kinskey
Minstrel	Fred Scott

You'll like particularly "Make a Wish" and "Music in My Heart," sung by the boy soprano, Bobby Breen, around whom the plot pivots.

Gertrude Berg of radio's "The Goldbergs" has selected a boys' summer camp in the Maine woods for her story's locale. Some excellent comedy situations and the nice touches of boyish humor were written in by the late Al Boasberg.

Bobby is spending his first year at the camp, where some of the city youngsters are enjoying their initiation in country living. Marion Claire, Chicago Civic Opera star and radio prima donna, is cast as Bobby's mother, whose letters to the lad inspire Basil Rathbone in the writing of his new operetta.

Uh-huh, you're dead right—Rathbone and Miss Claire meet with Bobby conducting the introduction with his customary little-man poise and aplomb. With that voice, Bobby's young and beautiful mother would be an ex-operetta star. She is persuaded by Rathbone to accept the lead in his musical opus and makes one of those phenomenal hits, but, more important to Bobby, he wins Rathbone for a step-father.

It's all pretty much on the gooey side but the production is saved somewhat by the light deft touch of Rathbone, a heavy customarily, the pleasing voice and presence of Miss Claire and Reisenfeld's superb scoring.

Bobby Breen fans should be delighted with the precocious, plumpish lad in this one and even those fans who have yet to find his cinematic achievements cause for street-dancing are apt to enjoy his way with the melodious Straus numbers already mentioned.

The companion picture, "Hot Water," features the popular folksy Jones family in their latest domestic misadventure. "Pa" Jones, in laudable righteous fettle, crusades to clean up the mayor's office in his town, a program which absorbs the attention of everyone in the family. Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Florence Roberts, Russell Gleason and Shirley Deane make the Joneses as familiar as the family next door. Peggy Doyle.

Old Howard's Late Show

Honey Bee Keller, starred in the new show, "Frisky Frolics," is the lure at the first big midnight show of the season at the Old Howard tonight.

The show opens at 11:30 p. m. and the advance ticket sale indicates a capacity house.

Assisting them are June Marshall, dancer; Bob Taylor, straight man, and 45 other talented performers including a chorus of 25 "Frisky Frolics" girls.

Comedy Hits Top Bills

Two new comedy hits, one a swingy musical comedy and the other a broad comedy of the farcical type, comprise the double feature program opening at the Scollay and Modern Theaters today. The rhythmic musical comedy, "You Can't Have Everything," with a cast of screen personalities including Alice Faye, the Ritz Brothers, Don Ameche, Louise Hovick, Charlie Winninger and others tops this new program while a first run feature "Public Wedding," featuring Jane Wyman, Dick Purcell, Marie Wilson and Burton Churchill, shares honors on the second half of the bill.

Loew's Host to Top-Hatters

Tonight is Top Hat night at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters! In conjunction with the opening of "Topper," H. M. Addison, division manager for Loew's, announces that every person wearing a top hat tonight will be admitted as a guest.

'CONFESSION' ON SCREEN AT MET

By PEGGY DOYLE

Salutary though it is supposed to be for the soul, Warner Brothers and Kay Francis could have postponed their "Confession" indefinitely and it would have been all to the good for all of them.

THE CAST

Vera	Kay Francis
Leonide Kirow	Ian Hunter
Michael Michailow	Basil Rathbone
Lisa	Jane Bryan
Presiding Judge	Donald Crisp
Hildegard	Mary Maguire
Mrs. Koslov	Dorothy Peterson
Stella	Laura Hope Crews
Prosecuting Attorney	Robert Barrat
Defense Attorney	Ben Welden
Xenia	Veda Ann Borg
Wanda	Helen Valkis
Reporter	Anderson Lawlor
Director	Joe May
Original screen play by	Hans Rameau
Adaptation by	Julius J. Epstein and Margaret LeVino

A largish crowd went to see "Confession" at the Met yesterday, but if they expected to see a suave, faultlessly garbed lady of the drawing-rooms daintily skirting sin but keeping her emotions always well under control, they were in for a shock.

Miss Francis, in her latest release, is as surprising as she is disillusioning.

She sings and you wish she'd leave that sort of thing to the Jeanette MacDonalds and the Deanna Durbins. She wears a blonde wig and, and frizzed into a 1900 five-and-ten-cent store curls or arranged in a semi-demi-Lynn-Fontanne-a-la-"Idiot's Delight" hairdo, it is a colossal mistake. She lets herself get tarnished—she who has such a talent for avoiding such cinematic contretemps—and she has neither the green-hat nonchalance nor the emotional capacity to make anything of it.

Ian Hunter is almost as unhappily cast in "Confession." As the handsome army officer, Leonide Kirow, for whom Vera, the great opera star (Kay Francis) gives up a glittering career, he is never given opportunity by the script-writers to get his teeth into the role.

Jane Bryan, Warner Brothers' starlet who was seen in "Marked Woman," has the opportunity, but she fails to take advantage of it. She is supposed to be a lovely, unawakened girl who charms on sight the great Michael Michailow, world-famous concert pianist, who is played to the hilt by Basil Rathbone. She's unawakened all right—in fact, she walks about in as much of a daze as one of those Lily Dale devotees Austen Lake writes about—but from where we sat she didn't seem to give off much enchantment.

That villain, Rathbone, who can sneer a sneer better than any sneerer on the screen, is the only one who seems to be at home in this Viennese triangle, which has been adapted from the popular European drama, "Mazurka." A knowing Continental roue, he takes the innocent Jane Bryan to dine in a rathskeller (basement to you) on goulash and wienerschnitzel.

A singer appears. She is Vera, a blondined, disillusioned Vera, forgotten by the fawning music-lovers and now singing in a second-rate eating-place. She sees the famous concert pianist, who is responsible for her unhappiness, and the girl with him, who is in reality the baby daughter taken from her when her husband divorces her, misunderstanding her relations with Michael Michailow.

She shoots Michailow, kills him, goes to trial for his murder. It is all very unhappy and unfortunate and it should be a lesson to the screen's most svelte and smooth siren not to go Stella Dallas on us. She hasn't got what it takes.

The best in the stage show is a dog act. These four cute pooches are as bright as all get out, and their capers on the Met stage this week should delight even those who are not so partial to man's best friend as is your reviewer.

PURGE OF G.O.P. 'OLD GUARD' PROPOSED

By ARTHUR HATCHEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Aug. 27—Certain forces [illegible] the Republican Party, including Senator Borah of Idaho, have launched a movement to toss what they consider the present 'reactionary' leaders out of their key positions, it was learned today.

The plans embrace calling a convention some time before next year's elections to effect the purpose [illegible] to take over the party, [illegible] and rebuild the G. O. P. with an appeal to the masses that it has been purged of Old Guard control.

Definite announcement of a program [illegible] delayed pending further conversations between the proponents who believe that only through a general housecleaning can the party stage a comeback.

GIRL ENDS SEA HIDEAWAY CAREER

MOLLY MOLLISON

Beauty Finds Stowing Away a Mistake

> "I must go down to the sea again, the lonely sea and the sky."
> —JOHN MASEFIELD

The girl [illegible] in the observation ward of [illegible] Hospital, New York, where she was taken after a [illegible] watchman caught her [illegible] several days ago.

Her attempt was made [illegible] was brought back after the ship docked at Boston a few days ago.

Now Miss M[illegible] [illegible] when asked whether her face was [illegible] for her:

"I'm not so sure."

Questioned what she would do on her release from the hospital, where she must remain another week, she answered:

"Get out of the country pronto."

And in response to a question [illegible] stowaway [illegible]:

"No, sir! No more stowing away for me. It was a great mistake."

LABOR PEACE URGED BY HOOK

Silver Bay, N. Y., Aug. 27 (AP)—Labor was urged today to join with employers in an effort to make the Wagner Labor Relations Act 'a real start towards a fair and equitable national labor policy.'

'This can be done,' James W. Hook, president of the New England Council, told the 20th annual Y. M. C. A. conference on industrial relations, by "defining unfair bargaining practices and making both sides responsible under the law."

Hook told the conference that "labor should be brought to see that passive acceptance by employers of a one-sided act does not make for peace but for industrial war."

Hook asserted that industry should support the right of labor to bargain collectively, but declared that it should demand amendment of the labor relations act "to make such bargaining possible."

AUTO WORKERS WAIT LEWIS

Milwaukee, Aug. 27 (AP)—John L. Lewis, [illegible] of the Committee for Industrial Organization, [illegible] the [illegible] convention of the United Automobile Workers [illegible].

His presence at the convention [illegible] in the role of a peacemaker was awaited even as warring [illegible] and 'progressive' factions claimed [illegible] victories in test votes of their strength.

Before any more vital fights [illegible] Lewis was expected to make an effort to soothe the [illegible].

TRAIN STRIKE THREAT FADES

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP)—A threatened strike of 350,000 workers who operate the nation's trains faded [illegible] a wage dispute.

The strike threat was precipitated when representatives of 86 major railroads rejected the demands of the "big five" railroad brotherhoods for a 20 per cent wage [illegible].

An offer by the National Mediation Board to seek a compromise was accepted by both sides yesterday, forestalling a strike in the immediate future.

Judge Maloney Rites Planned

Ayer, Aug. 27—Funeral services were being arranged today for Judge John M. Maloney, associate justice of the Ayer court for many years, who died yesterday at his home on W[illegible] street.

A graduate of Boston [illegible] law school, Judge Maloney [illegible] practice of law [illegible].

He served as chairman of the town Republican committee for many years, a selectman and also served as a representative in the state legislature.

Surviving are his widow, the former [illegible], a daughter, Mrs. Christine Smith, and a son, [illegible] Frank.

Rep. Holtz Quits Red Probe Group

Representative Jackson J. Holtz of Boston has resigned as a member of the special legislative commission to study activities of Communism, Nazism and other subversive propaganda to accept a position as an assistant United States attorney.

His place on the commission will be taken by Representative John F. Troy, Jr., of Boston, who was appointed by Horace T. Cahill, of Braintree, Speaker of the House.

Medford Druggist Held Up 4th Time

For the fourth time in two years bandits held up the Donovan & Faron drug store on Middlesex avenue in Medford early today, and also for the fourth time made store manager Sylvester O'Sullivan their victim.

Police spread a state-wide drag net for two [illegible] masked bandits who took $10 from O'Sullivan's pocket and $3 from his cash register.

The two were also charged with holding up four men in Duffy's Market on [illegible] street a short time before the drug store robbery, and escaping in a convertible sedan with $47 in cash.

Joseph Duffy, manager of the store, laughed when two men entered his store and said:

"This is a holdup."

Then they drew guns, forced Duffy, his clerk, Joseph Brennan, 40, and two customers, Charles M[illegible], 41, and Robert McF[illegible], 32, into the cellar.

Later, at the drug store, the pair missed $9 in the pockets of [illegible], clerk. As they were leaving, Mrs. Edith K[illegible] of [illegible] road, entered, but the bandits did not molest her.

Polish Groups Open Boston Conclave

Physicians, dentists and lawyers attending the 10th annual convention of the Polish Medical and Dental Association of America, and fifth annual Polish-American Bar Association parley, opened business sessions here today.

Women visitors made a motor trip up the North Shore. A cruise on the S. S. Steel Pier is scheduled for 8 p. m. tonight. National officers will be elected and a national convention city named at tomorrow's concluding session.

CARDINAL 30 YEARS BOSTON ARCHBISHOP

EVENT COMES ON MONDAY

Cardinal O'Connell will celebrate his 30th anniversary as archbishop of Boston next Monday.

On August 30, 1907, Cardinal O'Connell succeeded Archbishop Williams on the latter's death. Four years later he was made a Cardinal and was named "titular head of San Clemente," Rome.

Last November Catholics of the Boston archdiocese together with leading citizens and churchmen of the nation paid tribute to His Eminence on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of his appointment as cardinal.

The cardinal will be 78 years old on December 8. In spite of his years he is hale and hearty and works vigorously every day.

His record has been one of achievement. In the past quarter century 120 new churches were added to the diocese.

He has overseen the construction of notable buildings, including those of Boston College, the Passionist monastery in Brighton, Emmanuel College in the Fenway, the Jesuit College in Weston, the new diocesan building on Franklin street with its chapel in memory of St. Thomas More and the new St. John's seminary, rebuilt after its destruction by fire.

In addition to his work as a builder and executive the Cardinal has attained widespread fame because of his knowledge and views of subjects of national and international importance.

RAIN DELAYS CODMAN PROBE

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

After a long summer of hot sunshine I picked the two bad days to leave Rockport and travel down to Dennis on Cape Cod. It rained most of the way down, and coming back by way of Provincetown it was cold and misty. Of course, I didn't pick the days.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Eva Le Gallienne picked one of them for her opening night in "Hamlet" and Destiny filled in with a northeasterly gale Sunday. The after effects made the two following days pretty unpleasant.

At that I am not sure but what travelling over the road was more pleasant than it would have been on one of those 95 in the shade days with humidity at 80, such as we were having till Saturday's thunder storm broke that spell.

The atmosphere around one of these summer theaters is often pretty nice, particularly if you have to visit them on business bent. A couple of years ago I went up to Lakewood, near Skowhegan, Me. It was the fag end of the season and the play was nothing new or important.

Theater Is Finished In Rustic Fashion

The theater was picturesque and interesting and the cabins by the lakeside handsome and comfortable. I enjoyed the brief visit.

Dennis is not so elaborate. It has no cabins and overnight visitors have to put up in odd places here and there around the village.

The house we stayed in would have filled an antique collector's heart with delight. It was full of portraits painted a hundred years or more ago, genuine American primitives, stiff and slick, hard faced little boys and girls in pantalettes, military commissions, Masonic engravings, a great old map of Cape Cod with all the county divisions carefully worked out, a fine old painted screen even older, and all that sort of thing.

The theater is the finest thing of the sort I have seen, finely finished inside in rustic fashion, very roomy, capable of holding a very good-sized audience and with a deep balcony.

A step across the fields is the Cape Cinema, remodeled from a fine old country church and decorated inside with colorful murals by Rockwell Kent. Definitely worth seeing, and getting its pictures, as so often these summer resort theaters do get them weeks ahead of Boston or even New York.

Goldsmith Kept Busy By Visiting Critics

Then there was a cute little eating place for the acting company, the staff, and visiting firemen such as myself and a two-room office where Mr. Goldsmith, the press representative, was apparently going quietly mad with the responsibility of what really amounted to a metropolitan first night with visiting critics from New York and Boston, who had to have rooms found for them, had to be fed, and then after the performance had to be given typewriters and then their notices sent down to Western Union, and so forth.

In this business of despatching a notice by telegraph I'm afraid I didn't fare so well.

A good many of the critics had left the show early and were hard at work all over the place when I arrived. The only typewriter available was unfamiliar to me and rather bothersome, so I wrote by hand in the midst of a cheerful babel.

My notice wasn't long enough or full enough—somehow I can't write by hand any more—and the telegrapher didn't help much. Or maybe it was my handwriting. Anyway, when you try to say that the costuming was electic and it comes out in print "electric" it doesn't seem to make much sense.

Whippoorwill Sang Outside House All Night

Even if the notice was short it took so long to write by hand that everybody was through and had gone to Mr. Moore's party by the time I was finished, turned my stuff over to the long-suffering Mr. Goldsmith and drove home to the antiques and a very comfortable bed.

We wanted to make an early start for Provincetown the next morning, so I passed up the party, although presumably I might have a chance to meet Miss Le Gallienne, who, by the way, looked desperately tired in the last scenes of the play.

There was a whippoorwill outside our bedroom. It kept going all night. But I didn't hear it very long.

Jane Barnes, Mansfield Star, to Wed

CARLYLE MOORE JANE BARNES

Happy Young Movie Stars Ride to New Fame on a Bicycle Built for Two

[illegible]

The couple will be married at [illegible] with Rev. Lester R. M[illegible] of the [illegible] Mansfield, officiating.

Jane returned home to earn the first parts of acting which can only be gained by experience on the legitimate stage.

She had been in Hollywood for three years [illegible] who [illegible] be [illegible] star [illegible].

CAST OPPOSITE MOORE

The pretty Mansfield [illegible] joined Mary Young's company in Centreville and was cast opposite Moore in the play "Stop Light." This play by coincidence was written by Moore's late father, a well known New York playwright.

Moore too has been in Hollywood and has had parts in Warner Brothers' pictures in the past six years.

Miss Barnes has been on the Warner lot, but the couple did not meet until "places were called" at the Mary Young theater. They starred in three different plays.

Despite her well-to-do surroundings her story of her rise to Hollywood is not unlike that often-heard recipe for success—ambition and work.

She went to the Wykham Rise finishing school in Connecticut where she first became interested [illegible]

CLIMBS TO SUCCESS

[illegible]

[illegible] Jane [illegible]

She was chosen for [illegible] "Hollywood Extra" [illegible] "Hollywood Second Step."

She has seven brothers and sisters. Her father is prominent in the town of Mansfield, having been selectman and state representative.

For 22 years it used to be Jane Barnes, daughter of Clarence A. Barnes, former Yale baseball star and prominent attorney.

Dist. Atty. Foley Takes Out Papers For Mayor Race

Accompanied by a party of friends, District Attorney William J. Foley took out nomination papers for mayor today at City Hall.

Then he handed out a statement promising a stern fight in the campaign, and hitting at secret alliances, furtive agreements and decoy candidates.

His statement said:

"As a candidate for mayor of Boston, I am fully cognizant that the office of mayor is a public trust created solely for the public welfare and that an incumbent should not treat it as his private property.

"I shall so administer the duties of that high and honorable office that the happiness and well-being of all the citizens shall be safeguarded regardless of political, social, personal, racial or other considerations.

"I offer my public record as a representative, a senator, a governor's councillor and a district attorney of Suffolk County as proof of my honesty, my efficiency and my loyalty to the office to which I am elected.

"I have faith and confidence in the integrity and foresight and wisdom of the voters of the city of Boston, and in their hands I place my candidacy, with the full understanding that any and all promises made by me are solemn obligations."

5000 Guardsmen In Constitution Day Parade

Plans for Massachusetts' celebration of the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution on September 17 were speeded today following the announcement of the appointment of Adjutant General Charles H. Cole as chief marshal of the great civic military and fraternal parade.

General Cole's appointment was announced by the Sesquicentennial Constitution Commission created by Governor Hurley to plan the state wide observance of Constitution Day.

More than [illegible] officers and men of the National Guard will participate in the parade through Boston streets. It was announced that Governor Hurley has set aside $7000 of the executive contingency fund to defray expenses of the guardsmen who will participate in the parade.

Civic, fraternal and religious organizations will be invited to have units in the parade and prizes will be awarded to the best non-professional bands.

The commission also announced that a series of radio broadcasts will be sponsored during which noted speakers will discuss the Constitution, its history and ideals.

The state department of education has started work on plans for a state wide essay contest in schools. Medals will be awarded to pupils for the best essays on the Constitution.

Laundry Strike By 1800 Averted

A strike of 1800 laundry workers in Greater Boston today was averted by efforts of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

Temporary peace was reached after the board conferred with proprietors and employes of the laundries involved. It was agreed they should seek an understanding and submit any differences to the board.

MAYOR Clashes With FARNUM

BENOIT QUIZZED ON WHITE JOBS

There was no little tittering at City Hall today when the domed city council chamber began to leak rain and the Finance Commission probe of the Codman Hill Construction Company was delayed while police rushed pans and buckets.

Rain drops were [illegible] where Mayor Mansfield sits [illegible] counsel, Mr. Robins.

Four patrolmen were on duty [illegible] under Sergeant [illegible] baskets to the drip areas [illegible] and other utensils.

TILTS WITH FARNUM

[illegible]

"If Mr. Farnum will have stricken from the record all the statements made here by people who know nothing about the White Fund work, I will be perfectly willing to withdraw this matter."

"Ridiculous," snapped Farnum.

BAR SPECIFICATIONS

When Mansfield again asked Benoit if the [illegible] specifications called for the same type of work the witness replied:

Farnum again interrupted.

"I suppose," said Farnum to the mayor, "you want me to strike from the record the fact that the Codman books were stolen."

Commission Chairman David Lasker went into conference with his colleagues, then announced [illegible] to permit introduction of the library job specifications unless the mayor brought in representatives of the Worcester company.

"Was the waterproofing method tried and found satisfactory on other jobs?" Mayor Mansfield asked Benoit, referring to the Boylston street job.

"Yes," the witness answered.

But when Mansfield asked "What jobs?" Farnum objected again.

"The library job," Benoit answered.

Pleads Not Guilty In Auto Death Case

Alexander J. MacLean, 35, of Asbury rd., South Hamilton, today pleaded not guilty in East Cambridge district court to charges of operating to endanger and manslaughter arising from the auto death of Helen Nicholas, 40, of Arlington.

The woman was killed and her escort, Joseph Horlick, 39, of Cortlandt street, East Cambridge, injured when they were struck by a car as they crossed Memorial drive, Cambridge, last night, according to police.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Ann Marsters

Life is SO strange. And it got that way all of a sudden. I mean—things were going along in their usual dum-de-dum, August fashion, when people began sending us things like this:

"Icky bicky soda
cracker
Icky bicky boo
Icky bicky soda
cracker
Out goes you."

ANN MARSTERS

Of course we realize that it all started from our request for the complete childhood rhyme about "Tisket, tasket." And people undoubtedly got reminiscing and recalling the counting-out rhymes of their youth.

Most of the rhymes do not ring any kind of a bell in MY memory—but perhaps they'll sound familiar to some of you:

"Intry, mintry, cutry, corn
Apple seed and apple thorn
Three geese in a flock
One flies east and one flies west
And one flies over the cuckoo's nest
O-U-T out."

Long Forgotten Ostrich Back in Style News

Style Note: Feathers on the best bonnets these days. Big, swooping ostrich plumes to caress your cheeks. Little clusters of feathers on the top of your hat—if you're too conservative for the swooping kind. Bands of ostrich feathers that go round and round. Or towering plumes that go straight up from the back and peek over the top of bonnet shaped hats. Anyway, feathers are in, along with veils—and you can pack away your plain tweed suits and your sturdy felt hats. If you want to be smart, you'll have to join the dress parade.

DREDGING PROJECT AT STANDSTILL

Efforts to bring about dredging of the South Boston basin [illegible] today after a Federal hearing [illegible] proponents of the [illegible] States [illegible]

A query from Captain W. S. Moore, United States Corps of Engineers, as to the willingness of the proponents to aid the government financially in the proposed project brought no response.

Only one of those favoring the basin dredging, Frederick B. Walker of the Stetson Fuel Corporation, had offered to donate money if the project went into effect. He left the meeting a few minutes before Captain Moore presented his question.

Earlier, Walker said the project would cut his company's expenses from $50,000 to $35,000 a year and promised that if it went through he would expend $100,000 to improve its property and raise a subscription toward the government's expenses.

Ralph S. Patterson, trustee of the Jesse [illegible] estate and Walter S. Nicholson told Chairman Moore that it is inconceivable Boston can go back to sailing ship days.

Other proponents declared the shallow basin and narrow drawbridge created a great waste of time in the handling of barges and said that unless the channel was dug to a 30-foot depth the whole basin was "not worth a dime."

CHAPTER 29

Guy Halstead-Flagg had been all over the world.

He was energetic, rich, a connoisseur in art, a sportsman, and to some extent a scholar; from his early days the world had been his oyster. He had lived fully.

He was 34 years old. Handsome and magnetic, he was a great attraction for women. Not only did they fall in love with him but, more important, they liked him.

[illegible]

He had been put through many tests of courage. Lion hunting in Africa. [illegible]

[illegible]

Guy raised horses. Since his management of the estate many fine bloodlines had been added to the Halstead-Flagg farm.

GENERALLY LIKED

But despite flirtations he would drift away from them back to his own devices or off on an expedition that put oceans between him and the charmer.

[illegible] despite a heartache there was [illegible] any resentment toward him.

He was very well liked in Kentucky.

[illegible] his brother's tragic death, a change had come over Guy. He had been deeply attached to young Randolph who [illegible] and whose [illegible] life had been rather a wild one.

Following Randy's death, Guy [illegible] on his [illegible] to New York it began to be [illegible] back home that Guy was seen at this and that night club [illegible]

For Randy had died in a night club. And died inglorious[illegible]

That Guy, who had vowed he loathed Broadway, and all it stood for, should follow Randy's [illegible] was unthinkable. Yet it seemed the case.

The only thing lacking in the [illegible] was the finding of the [illegible] of these visits.

For a single purpose animated [illegible] mind.

It had nothing to do with pleasure or the companionship of the [illegible]

[illegible] aware that in his [illegible] there were times [illegible] under Le Chateau de [illegible] That Guy was [illegible] before the climax [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Guy was in the [illegible]

A VAIN HOPE

Yet there were times when Guy [illegible] hurt and puzzle her, [illegible] he would be affectionate one day and [illegible] critical next time they met.

Trying to reassure herself, Toni thought: "He's fighting against me—he doesn't want to admit he cares—but I'll win in the end!"

That he was attracted to her [illegible] to the club [illegible] at her table [illegible] her about herself, were [illegible]

But he had not yet asked to call at her apartment.

She wondered about that. Had Harriet Brewster said anything? —she wondered. Extolled the expensive [illegible] things and high tea? Was Guy imagining things about herself and Niklas? That would be horrible.

She would ask him to dinner some evening, show him that she could cook an excellent meal. Surely, alone with her, he would want to make love to her.

Once again as at Harriet Brewster's cocktail party she would glimpse his true feelings!

With a lift of the heart she saw Guy enter the club some time after midnight.

Would he come to her table?—she wondered. Ask her to dance?

Then she remembered the hundred dollars and Cassie Doyle.

The money was under the cushion of her chair. Niklas had advanced a week's salary, as requested. He had been quite agreeable about it.

Cassie would presently arrive. So better, she thought, that Guy did not come to her till later. They must not meet, or Cassie might unwittingly expose her.

FALLING DEATH!

But he seemed to be coming toward her now.

Hastily she rose. She would go up to the dressing room. She took two steps forward, when she heard a splintering crash behind her!

She swung round. There was a flurry of exclamations, a rush of waiters, a voice calling out "What a narrow escape, Marquise!"

A great swinging lamp directly above the place where she had been sitting had fallen from its chain, crashing in a thousand jagged splinters over her chair, the table [illegible]

Had she been sitting there it would have killed her!

Breathing a prayer of thankfulness she suddenly remembered the hidden money. Before the waiters could brush the debris from the chair she herself did it, at the same time secreting the money in the quaint reticule that was part of her costume.

When everything was cleared away, Toni slipped the bills back under the cushion, ready for Cassie when she should arrive.

Fifteen minutes later, she was on the floor, singing, apparently completely at ease again.

While she sang, Cassie came in and headed for the table and chair.

Cassie in a cheap little evening wrap that even in the golden light looked tawdry. From the corner of her eye, Toni saw the girl's hand slide under the cushion as she seated herself.

THAT WAS WHY

Toni saw Cassie turn nervously, as though afraid of watching eyes. It seemed as though she were afraid of a detective spying on her. The man was Guy Halstead-Flagg.

He half suspected she would do this.

That was why he had followed her!

Mightiest Glamour Aid in Tiniest Form

[illegible]

Age-Old Extracts From Oat Kernel Give Skin Pearly, Clear Bloom

By ARLINE GOULD

WHILE we're proud of the strides science has made in beauty aids, there's no getting away from the fact that the wily ancients blundered upon some things that even today work miracles.

Some of them still quite unexplained!

One of the mightiest aids to complexion beauty . . . in fact several of them . . . is found in the tiny oat kernel.

While we like to give credit where it's due, we feel that the storied pampered beauties down the ages should have been pretty special with all the wealth and time and bowing servants at their disposal!

It's the occasional dramatic entrance of some devastating creature whose beauty aids were no more than cool water and a tiny pad filled with oat kernels pounded to rich softness . . . and who proceeded to shake all the civilized world known at the time . . . that's what we think is more than swell!

In the lands that unfailingly produce clear-skinned creatures of enigmatic charm, like the Marlene, the Greta, the Sten . . . often the only cosmetic aid for the majority is the oat kernel pulp. It has magical bleaching, clearing and softening qualities that no other one thing possesses!

It would seem [illegible] but a veritable sin to overlook one very special cream which has through the kind help of science squeezed every bit of good out of perhaps a quart of oat kernels and packed it into one jar!

You can't afford to let the wind-blown, tanned, breezy personality last you one minute into September and autumn clothes.

Quickest short cut to blossoming forth with skin clear as a bubbling sand-spring, with pores fine-grained as satin, and a pearly tint that's nothing short of luminous . . . that's the pure oatmeal cream!

EXERCISE CAN WARD OFF WRINKLES

By IDA JEAN KAIN

WOULD you believe that one simple little exercise could keep the wrinkles out of your face, give you a chiseled throat line and a firm, youthful bust line?

It sounds fantastic, but there is such an exercise, and Dr. J. Howard Crum, famous surgeon and beauty authority, is convinced that, "If the girl in her 'teens would make a daily one practice of this one exercise, she would never need to have a wrinkle."

Here it is: Stand with one foot slightly in front of the other, head held as if you were being lifted off the floor by it. Tense the neck muscles and chew. Don't merely open and shut the jaws. Chew so that you can feel the contraction through the pectoral muscles across the chest, in the neck, and in the region of the temples. If you do the [illegible]

MADGE SEEKS DECODING AID

CHAPTER 391

I must find Lillian immediately. This was my first thought as I turned from the pseudo junkman who had brought me the secret code letter.

I knew, of course, that a letter in code was either from my father or from someone to whom he had given one of the codes which he knew I could decipher.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

"How is the daisy factory coming along?"

There was ludicrous relief in the eyes of both women and Lillian laughed with nervous gayety.

"Public Benefactor No. 1," she exclaimed. "Your mother-in-law is worn to a frazzle trying to teach me how to make these dratted daisies. They look simple, but there is a certain knack to them which she has to perfection, but I have five thumbs on either hand. But I'm game. I'll stick here all day if necessary, but I hope for her sake you have come to summon me away from here. She must be a wreck, poor dear."

MOTHER'S BEDTIME

"I'm nothing of the kind," my mother-in-law asserted, but her tone lacked conviction. "And you're really doing very well," she said in the voice and manner one uses for social fibs.

"So sorry to disappoint you," I told Lillian mockingly, but my eyes flashed her a far different signal, telling her that I needed her at once, "but I didn't come to disturb this session, merely to watch it. But, mother"—ostentatiously looking at my watch—"do you know that it is past time for your morning nap? I didn't think of it until just this minute, but you know Dr. Gibson won't like it a bit if you miss it."

I was speaking only the truth, [illegible]

A WAY WITH GREEN PEPPERS

Mixed Corn and Pepper Is Choice

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

Green peppers are far too good to just put a ring of them on top of a tomato salad and dismiss them from our thoughts.

The flavor of sweet green peppers has long been depended upon for soups, stews and salads, but to give them their just place in the menu they should be served as a separate vegetable.

Tennis at Longwood Continues To Attract Fashionables

By BETTY ALDEN

THOSE WHO HAVE BEEN at summer resorts a couple of months are finding the daily trips to town for the National Doubles championship matches at Longwood a welcome change from the outdoor diversions at the shore . . . Most of the tennis fans who come from the far ends of the North and South shores make a day of it, with luncheon and dinner dates in town before and after the thrilling matches at the Cricket Club

MRS JOHN ANDRESON

The slight hint of fall in the air yesterday was plenty of excuse for the women to get out their warm and colorful tweeds . . . and introduce a bit of variety into jaded summer wardrobes . Annette Hollis, who has gained a reputation for being very well dressed on all occasions was in robins egg blue from tip to toe . . . a two-piece sport suit of Bermuda tweed with a trick little hat of the same fabric, stitched and dipped down over one eye at a stylish angle, made a very appropriate and colorful outfit for sitting in the gallery of spectators . . .

Eleanor Little, a debutante of last winter, will have to forego the semifinals at Longwood tomorrow, for the exciting experience of marching down the aisle as bridesmaid for her cousin Marion Little in Newburyport . . . She [illegible] number of matches yesterday, however [illegible] shower in the late afternoon threatened to spoil her [illegible] tweed coat and matching turban . . Eleanor and her [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Leon M. Little of Chestnut Hill, are giving a [illegible] at the Eastern Yacht Club this evening in honor of Marion and her bridegroom-to-be, Dr. David Woolfolk Bar[illegible]

Mrs. Arthur Hollingsworth, Jr. (Eleanor Gibson) and her [illegible] Mrs. Kirkland Gibson, were two of the best dressed in yesterday's throng of tennis fans . . . their attractive costumes [illegible] many admiring glances as they strolled from one court [illegible] . . . Mrs. Gibson combined a mustard color nubby wool [illegible] skirt and accessories . . . while Eleanor's sky blue [illegible] had a jacket of novelty wool combining the blue [illegible] a twist of the blue and wine banded her leg [illegible]

Eleo Sears Entertains

MR. AND MRS. JAMES PARKER 2D came up from the North Shore . . . they are pretty regular attendants at the matches since tennis is one of Mrs. Parker's many athletic accomplishments . . . Jean Tuckerman, one of the South Shore's [illegible] sailorettes, looked quite citified in a navy blue ensemble with a polka dot sash effect wound around the crown of her navy [illegible] . . .

[illegible] who in the matter of dress, is the Eleo Sears of [illegible] sat in Eleo's box, wearing a tailored gray suit and [illegible] hat much the same color as Eleo's outfit . . . Miss [illegible] is a frequent visitor at the Quincy Shaw McKeans at Prides Crossing . . . Anne Clark and her sister Sally, exact opposites in [illegible], both wore navy blue . . .

Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike, Jr. (Lucy Rantoul) was in a party with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Richard Thorndike, Sr. . . . Mrs. [illegible] was flanked by three attractive daughters . . . and Mr. [illegible] Pickman escorted his mother-in-law, Mrs. [illegible] of New York . . .

Mrs. Wesley Loomis 3d (Polly Paine) has been on from her new home in Kansas City to visit her family, the John Paines at Duxbury . . . and to get in a bit of salt water sailing at which she has always been so expert . . . Polly became Mrs. [illegible] at a lavish wedding in April . . .

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Converse of Four Winds, Ingham, have returned there after visiting Mrs. Converse's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Tudor at Sandwich . . .

Cabaret Planned at Annisquam

RAYMOND S. WILKINS of Winchester, who directed the musical revue which was one of the most interesting features of the recent reunion of Harvard's class of 1912, has collaborated with Robert M. Whittemore of Weston in writing songs, both music and lyrics, for the supper dance and cabaret which will be held at the Annisquam Yacht Club on Labor Day evening, September 6 . . . Francis W. Hatch of Wayland and Henry W. Patterson of Weston are also working on words and music for this affair to be held in the clubhouse ballroom . .

Mrs. Reginald B. Elwell and Mrs. Robert M. Whittemore, who were stars of the Cape Ann Follies of 1934, will play a return engagement with novel song interpretations . . . Mr. Wilkins will demonstrate his versatile talents by playing xylophone solos, and Mrs. Karl P. Heinzen of Newton and Charles H. Matz of Brookline will do a tango . . . Singing by a male and female chorus and dance specialties performed to the music of Ruby Newman's orchestra complete the program . . .

SOCIALITES TAKE THEIR SPORTS SERIOUSLY

MRS. NELSON ALDRICH MRS. T. DENNIE BOARDMAN

SMOKED GLASSES are a necessary addition to every society girl's accessories in the summer time, as she attends so many outdoor affairs, such as polo, field days, beach parties and the tennis matches now being held at Longwood this week. The photographer caught Mrs. Nelson Aldrich (Eleanor Tweed) and Mrs. T. Dennie Boardman (Vivian Dixon), both of Manchester, while they were wearing their sun glasses at a recent outdoor affair.

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

PREFERENCE among programs tonight from where this outlook sits, is looming in the form of "Hollywood Hotel," and small wonder, with Deanna Durbin and Leopold Stokowski scheduled to do the "mike" starring.

There will be a preview of the picture "A Hundred Men and a Girl" staged for the coast to coast air audience, with Deanna and Leopold presented by Harriet Parsons, still pinch-hitting for Louella Parsons, the noted screenland scribe.

Grimm Refuses to Give Up Ghost

For second consecutive day, the Chicago Cubs and Boston Bees have been forced to postpone their diamond warfare. A steady rain that began early this morning and continued through until noon time forced the Bees' management to cancel the scheduled twin bill.

The clubs will engage in a doubleheader tomorrow, weather permitting.

By JOE CASHMAN

His eyes closed, his brawny bare arms serving as a pillow for his head, Charlie Grimm was stretched out on the rubbing table in the visitors' clubhouse at the Hive.

We thought maybe he had dozed off in an effort to forget what had happened to his league-leading Chicago Cubs in New York the day before, when they dropped a doubleheader and fell to within two games of the second-place Giants.

But we were mistaken.

As [illegible] Bees [illegible] on [illegible] snood of the locker room, jolly Cholly was wide awake and speaking.

"Now don't you sympathize with me," he began even before we could say hello. "Everybody I've met here today talks as though the world came to an end for us over on the Polo Grounds."

"Well, those two lickings didn't help you any," we ventured.

NOT GOING TO MISS

"I'm not saying they did," chirped Charlie, now sitting up and warming to his subject, "but they didn't wreck us either. All they did was make it just a little harder for us to win a flag we're not going to miss."

And then the Bruins' boss having [illegible] two games couldn't rob him of his omnipresent optimism, went on to explain why his boys would [illegible] of their recent [illegible] and go on to the championship.

"For one thing, despite our faltering of late, we still have a two-game lead, which is not to be sneezed at.

"For another, even with some of my key men on the injured list, I think I have the best balanced club in the league and class is bound to tell in the long run.

"I would say our strongest asset, though, is the schedule. We have all the best of it from here on and everything else being equal the edge in this respect should be enough to carry us through.

"We'll have our hands full here, playing three games in two days, but we shouldn't lose any ground to the Giants, who'll be playing two straight doubleheaders with the Pirates.

"And after that we figure to be sitting pretty. We go to Brooklyn and Philadelphia, while the Giants will be taking on the Cards and Reds.

TO GET THE BREAKS

"Then we go home for 21 games, and the Giants, in the meanwhile, will be running into plenty of opposition in the four western cities.

Actually [illegible] season with a broken [illegible] league is late with a lame shoulder. There's something or other wrong with Joe Marty, brilliant outfield rookie.

But there was a time earlier in the race when no less than seven of the Chicago regulars, including spark plugs "Gabby" Hartnett and Billy Herman, [illegible] three players out.

He's that kind of [illegible]. He may not be the game's greatest manager but for seeing the silver lining in dark clouds he's in a class by himself.

TWO TOUGH ONES

In today's doubleheader, which is a result of the Thursday showers which washed out the scheduled opening of the engagement, Grimm announces he'll pitch Tex Carleton, most deadly Bees jinx, and the veteran Charlie Root who has staged a most remarkable comeback this season.

The Bees, who are now crippled even worse than the Cubs, will call on Lou Fette, making his third try for win No. 15 and Guy Bush, long a Cubs' ace.

The Swarm's hospital list was increased to five just bef[illegible]

Ex-Ball Star Sends Cheers To Lynn Boy

"Sure, you can play baseball, even if you do have only one leg."

So says "Peg-leg Pete" Kaiser, former star pitcher for New Orleans and a successful wingman in the semi-pros for many years.

Kaiser sent word to Robert Dunning, 12-year-old Lynn boy whose leg was amputated after a fall from a cliff blasting his hopes for becoming a big league ball player.

"Don't let a little thing like that bother you," said Kaiser.

"I used to get in the pitcher's box, lay down my crutch and kneel down when I pitched.

This Year's Field Considered Best Ever

3 STATES Enter Junior CHAMPIONS

By BILL GRIMES

Since its inception, the William Randolph Hearst New England championships have attracted the best young golfers in the Bay State and a scattered few from New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Maine.

[illegible] was a quarter finalist last year was the only out-of-stater [illegible] qualified in the first Hearst [illegible] Hill Country [illegible] at Worcester [illegible] Rhode Island was well represented [illegible] interest in the Hearst was [illegible] as far as Maine and New Hampshire were concerned until last year.

In the fifth Hearst, which will be played at Sandy Burr Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, there will be no less than [illegible] out of state juniors, eight from New Hampshire, seven from [illegible] and one from Maine.

[illegible]

The fifth Hearst will be the classiest junior championship ever held in this or any other country. The field will include three state junior champions and the runners up, three former junior titleholders and the Worcester County junior and ex-junior titlist.

[illegible] Tommy Leonard, Jr., Nashua Country Club, holder of the New Hampshire [illegible] and "Bud" Patterson [illegible] Warwick, the Rhode Island [illegible]

The draw for the Hearst will be published in tomorrow's Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser.

The Ump Is Right This Time

GOODMAN AND WARD MEET

Alderwood Country Club, Portland, Ore., Aug. 27 (INS)—Just when it seemed certain that youth was to take a beating in the national amateur golf championship, youth, as exemplified by Johnny Fischer, national title holder of Cincinnati, rallied superbly to defeat the 47-year-old veteran, Chick Evans, of Chicago.

[illegible]

Today in the semi-finals, Fischer will meet Ray Billows, the "Cinderella Kid" from Poughkeepsie, the youngster who played such sensational golf today in defeating Charles Kocsis of Detroit and Reynolds Smith of Dallas, in successive matches. Fischer has his work cut out for him.

[illegible]

The Evans-Fischer match will go down in history as one long to be remembered.

Thrills were promised from the start and a gallery of several thousand which surged after them as they left the first tee saw Evans play from deep rough to the left of the first fairway to within a hundred yards of the green.

They saw Fischer hit a mighty brassie second to the rough on the left of this same green. From far back Evans pitched to within six feet of the cup and then sank his putt for a birdie four to lead the national champion 1 up.

AUSTEN LAKE

Fight Postponement Presages Jacobs' 1st Financial Flop

AUSTEN LAKE

"198 pounds," called Dr. William Walker, steadying the scale lever with a finger. "198," relayed a dozen voices to the gallery of waiting newsmen outside. "Hmmm. Lighter than he's been since Schmeling," said a nearby journalist, bringing a glare from the Negro group, in whose nostrils mention of Schmeling is anathema.

"Har-yah Tommy," said Joe casually.

"O, I'm fine, very fine," snapped Farr with satirical inflection, curling up the side of his face where there was a white surgical scar. Louis said nothing more and stepped into his trousers. There were blobs of perspiration on his upper lip and his kinky curls looked damp in the fetid air, made humid by stale breaths and close-packed bodies. Frog-faced officials wiped their necks with smutted kerchiefs.

A telephone jangled and one of the frog faces shouted "Yeh" with impatient authority and then suddenly submissive, "O Mike! The general? Jussa minit."

[illegible] New York [illegible] Monday [illegible] Monday. Resume training and report [illegible] examination at 3 that afternoon."

POSTPONEMENT UPSET LOUIS

An expression of perplexity crossed Louis' face. His eyes wandered questioningly toward those of his simian-faced trainer, Jack Blackburn. For the first time in my memory emotion was written on the dead-pan features of the Negro. Furrows of worry puckered his brow, little corrugations which gathered rivulets of perspiration.

As a primitive thinker, subject to racial superstitions, Louis [illegible] the sequence of events leading up to his [illegible] his licking from Max Schmeling [illegible] June 19, 1936. For then as now, his [illegible] an easy victim. The press had universally [illegible]

Also then as now it had rained on the afternoon of the fight and the pugs were drawing on their garments when the postponement was announced. His wife, the sloe-eyed and onyx-skinned Marva Trotter Louis, had been present at ringside the following night when Schmeling fetched him a jaw-crumbling belt which tumbled him on his satined hams. And she was going to be somewhere in the sea of ringside faces again Monday for the first time since that painful mauling.

[illegible] Mrs. Louis [illegible] knew that he was on razor edge [illegible]

UNTOLD STORY

There is a previously untold story behind this, though one not likely to be duplicated again on Monday. For, on the afternoon the Schmeling bout was postponed Louis had broken cursingly away from his handlers and gone to interview his wife in her Harlem apartment. It was less a mission of domestic peace than one to thresh out a calumny raised by a Negro taxi driver who claimed a prior marital pledge from Joe's dusky helpmeet. There had been a covert settlement of a suit by his manager and Louis was raging with suspicion and anxiety.

The story was told to me by John Roxborough, the fighter's business [illegible] last June.

So he [illegible] of Pompton Lakes in his special bodied roadster and stamped into the Harlem apartment in a froth. What transpired there Roxborough did not say, but he related how Louis had returned, [illegible] late that night and locked himself away from [illegible] all next day until it was taxi time for the stadium. And even then, said Roxborough, he sat in a morbid funk while Blackburn gave him his last-minute lecture, rising mechanically at the hall boy's call to the ring and wandering in the wrong direction [illegible] toward the arena.

In the intervening time Louis' family frets appear to have been solved, and the misty complexioned Marva is making another appearance at ringside to watch her homicidal husband. At least the weight of domestic uncertainty seems to have lifted and this afternoon Louis quickly recovered his fatalistic calm while his dark spar-mates were being re-assembled and the three-day drudge resumed.

He tapped his pear shaped bag, ghost skipped around the scaffold and did his knee dips and stomach bends. A few newsmen motored to Pompton Lakes [illegible] a [illegible] of a tantrum and returned disappointed [illegible] to warm over the soggy leavings [illegible] on excursion [illegible] Week end visitors tried to cash [illegible] Mary, an out of towner, here for [illegible]

FARR TAKES DELAY BEST

By JACK CONWAY

New York, Aug. 26—Max Schmeling will insist that his bout with the winner of the Joe Louis-Tommy Farr bout be staged on October 12.

Schmeling, of course, figures [illegible] winner of the 15-round world's heavyweight championship bout which will be held at the Yankee Stadium on next Monday night. Like most other persons versed in boxing, Der Max does not believe Farr has other than a slim outside chance to dispose of the champion.

[illegible]

FEARS DELAY

Max has not [illegible] since he [illegible] Joe [illegible] Schmeling [illegible] here would be a [illegible] next June [illegible] at [illegible]

Schmeling is asking 30 per cent of the gate for a title bout, but he is ready to lower this demand. Heavyweight challengers have received from 10 to 17½ per cent, and it is believed the German will sign if given 20 per cent.

[illegible]

WANTS MORE MONEY

The fact the Louis-Farr bout is not expected to draw more than [illegible] Schmeling [illegible] Louis will receive 40 per cent of the receipts. In the event [illegible] the champion will pull down $[illegible]

Louis is today back at Pompton Lakes, N. J., while Farr is back at Long Branch, N. J. Each will do some boxing today and tomorrow and then take things easily on Sunday so as to be in the best possible condition for their battle on Monday night.

Farr took the postponement [illegible] Monday, which was caused by rain, better than Louis. The champion appeared upset when told the bout had been put over until Monday night. Joe is razor sharp and was anxious to get the match over with as quickly as possible.

BRITISH FANS ON SPOT

Farr is a stolid type and was not upset over the delay. Perhaps one [illegible] when a ring meeting with Louis is drawn.

Welsh miners here for the bout were sorely disappointed by the postponement. Along with other [illegible] fans they had planned to sail back to England tomorrow.

[illegible] though they are able to make [illegible] arrangements, the Welsh miners state they lack funds to defray their expenses in New York during the longer stopover.

Louis continues to rule a 6-to-1 betting choice with few Farr supporters.

War Admiral Sent to De Grace

By the Associated Press

Racing in New York state has been so profitable this year that several of the racing associations have announced increases in their stakes for the fall events. The Aidsey, formerly a two-year-old event at six furlongs, will be run a mile and 70 yards and will carry $2500 added money. The Yorktown Handicap will be increased in value from $5000 to $7500.

War Admiral, triple crown winner, will be shipped from Saratoga to Havre de Grace for the opening of the Harford County track with the other Glen Riddle Farms horses. The Derby winner is eligible for the Lawrence Realization, a mile and a half gallop, at that track, but no plans for him have been announced for Havre de Grace or Belmont. It is understood the Admiral will go through daily workouts at Havre de Grace.

Class J. Sloops Out Of Big Regatta

New London, Conn., Aug. 27 (AP)—The America's Cup rivals Ranger and Endeavour II were withdrawn today from the international Class J sloop races planned as a climax for the Governor's regatta.

The regatta committee announced it had received a telegram from Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt and T. O. M. Sopwith advising it of the decision.

"We understand that Endeavour I, Rainbow and Yankee unable to compete in governor's regatta. Under these circumstances we must regretfully withdraw the entries of Ranger and Endeavour II."

The big sloops were to have raced September 6, 7 and 8 for a trophy donated by Governor Wilbur L. Cross. The governor recently invited President Roosevelt to be his guest at the races, but the President replied he would be unable to attend.

The 12-day regatta gets under way tomorrow.

WILSON Hits 5 More WINNERS

CHALKS UP 14 IN 3 DAYS

Dave Wilson, Boston Evening American handicapper, again yesterday proved his worth to the title of King Handicapper of New England by picking five winners on the eight race card at Narragansett Park.

On Tuesday Wilson started this drive by picking five consecutive winners and then followed up on Wednesday with four winners.

Wilson's selections yesterday included the last four winners on the program to bring his grand total to 14 winners in the past three days.

The streak started in the fifth race and continued to the last race as Wilson picked old Nassau in the fifth, Knight's Haven in the sixth, Onus, his best bet, captured the seventh and Last Romance took first place honors in the eighth and final run.

Fishing 'Drouth' Is Over

GOOD CATCHES ARE REPORTED

In the throes of a slump in what should normally be one of the best months for New England sport fishing, prospects for successful angling, both salt water and inland, considerably brightened with the northeaster early this week.

Erratic, far below the conditions of other seasons, salt water fishing has been carried along for the past two sultry weeks by occasional catches of striped bass and a few bluefish.

But fishermen whetted appetites anew this week, oiled the lines and reels and turned to the water again, with good catches of tautog, stripers and blues reported on the Cape, with bass and pickerel striking well in some inland waters, and with more tuna reported seen in the waters off Provincetown and Plum Island than for several weeks.

Captain Arthur Weeks of Falmouth has written that bluefish are coming in strong along the shorelines, with 40 being taken by the combined sport fishing boats of Falmouth one day last week.

There is every indication for a good run during September, he says.

Striped bass seems to be the most consistent fare for fishermen along the Cape. They have been reported in Buzzard's Bay, at the mouth of the Canal; off Duxbury, and up the Parker River; from Weantic to Wellfleet, and off Nauset beach.

Three weighing in the 30 pounds were taken between Nauset and Wellfleet last weekend; one of them weighing 38 pounds.

Henry Cochran of Roslindale, according to Brainerd Kenning, hooked a mighty striper in Buzzard's Bay, breaking his rod trying to bring it in. Cochran's rod snapped off at a joint, tugging at the catch, which, suspicion grows, was the bottom of the bay.

Bass and pickeral have been striking far better this past week at Hurd's Pond, Wayland, and the water is in better condition than for a month previous.

For the first time in a number of seasons, squateague, or sea trout, are being taken off Cataumet.

Ben Ames Williams, sportsmen and author, took a 29-pound sea salmon, the largest this season at Anticosti Island, in the St. Lawrence river. It was taken in six-mile pool of Jupiter river.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weld, New York, fishing in Lautic river at Anticosti, took the second largest catch.

Successful anglers for inland bass have an answer to the reason why most fishermen have been genuinely unsuccessful during the past month.

They say that instead of attempting to catch them during the evening hours, ordinarily a good feeding time for bass, the bass are striking in the warm weather only during the early morning hours, from sunrise to about an hour or two later.

Daniel Merriman, expert biologist for the American Wild Life Institute, making a survey in the streams around Newburyport, has found that striped bass breed in the Parker river and other nearby waters.

Many small bass, only an inch or two in length, were found in the Parker river, indicating that the deep sea bass spawn in those inland waters.

Dr. Leo F. Noley of Lawrence recently took a string of 16 stripers off the rocks of North Jetty at Plum Island, one of the most bountiful catches in weeks there.

The Lawrence physician, a veteran fisherman, said he thought the bass had disappeared there a month ago.

Caught on rod and reel, they weighed from one to three pounds.

THOUSANDS BECOME CONVERTS TO HI-LI

The time has come, the walrus said, to play Hi-Li.

Everybody is playing this fascinating new sport that has gained converts by the thousands here and in the other cities and towns of the country.

Hi-Li is the game you see in every street, in every home and in every vacant lot. It is played with a small wooden paddle and a rubber ball. The ball is attached to the paddle by a strong elastic cord.

Players hit the ball with the paddle, and then attempt to keep hitting it continuously for as many times as possible. Only error or exhaustion puts an end to the true Hi-Li players string of "hits."

The Boston Evening American, in conjunction with a group of Greater Boston theaters, is sponsoring this new game here. It is offering a variety of prizes to winners of a series of elimination Hi-Li contests now being staged.

9:30 a. m.—Strand Theater, Chelsea.

10:30 a. m.—Revere Theater, Revere.

11:30 a. m.—Lincoln Theater, Quincy Point.

11:30 a. m.—Dorchester Theater, Dorchester; Gem Theater, East Boston.

RELIEF ROLLS SLASHED; HERE'S THE ANSWER!

(Editor's Note: Federal and local governments still are spending millions for relief. Members of the Workers Alliance, the relief-workers union, marched on Washington this week protesting layoffs. What is the relief situation? In the following Associated Press dispatch the Boston Evening American gives the answers of Washington officials to some of the questions newspaper readers are asking about relief.)

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—Have WPA rolls been reduced this summer?

There are nearly 475,000 fewer persons on the rolls now than in May. From mid-July to mid-August, more than 129,000 persons left the rolls. The mid-August roll call of 1,527,450 workers compared with 2,376,000 a year previous.

Why was this reduction made?

To bring federal relief rolls within the smaller allowance provided by Congress for the year beginning last July.

How was it accomplished?

LAID OFF FOR "CAUSE"

Were any laid off?

Yes, "for cause." If they don't work the WPA fires them.

Doesn't this throw some of the least efficient persons into competition for private jobs?

That is the argument of the relief-workers union, the Workers Alliance. They say some efficiency ratings were arbitrary.

What is WPA's reason for firing these less efficient workers?

The WPA program must keep up a "dignified and worthwhile" standard on its projects to hold the public confidence.

Yes, the new relief act provided that aliens should not be kept on WPA. Persons who had not taken out their first papers of citizenship were ruled out or refused as applicants.

MOVING GROUP

Are the men who still work on WPA projects becoming permanent public charges?

WPA is a constantly moving group and only 10 per cent have been on the rolls for two years or more.

Theoretically, the nation cares for those capable of working, by providing them jobs; the states give aid to the "unemployable."

5,172,901 CLIENTS

Various agencies of nation, state, city and county paid out more than $165,000,000 in June to 5,172,901 clients. Many clients however, appear on the rolls of more than one agency.

How was this public assistance given out?

In June the number of clients on various rolls was: General relief (states, cities and counties), 1,274,000; WPA, 1,753,876; resettlement administration, 191,248; other federal agencies, 453,071; old age assistance, 1,293,964; aid for dependent children, 170,768; aid for blind, 35,974.

Are WPA rolls on the downgrade for good?

That depends in part on how effective private industry is in giving jobs to the unemployed. One reason for holding down the rolls this summer is the expectation, based on experience, that the winter will swell the ranks of the needy.

Will the government's $1,500,000,000 relief fund last until next July, as it is supposed to?

By keeping fewer workers on WPA, the government hopes to make the fund last out the year.

Mother to Leave Anita Louise For Marriage

Hollywood, August 27 (INS)—About the middle of October, Anita Louise's pretty blonde mother, Mrs. Ann Beresford, will become the bride of Verne Whitehead, scenario writer, sportsman and orchestra leader.

The wedding plans, confirmed by Mrs. Beresford, take Hollywood completely by surprise. Until a few weeks ago, when their engagement was announced as broken, it was believed that Mrs. Beresford would marry David Blankenhorn, prominent Pasadenan and one-time husband of Irene Rich.

Reluctant to discuss her new romance, Mrs. Beresford disclosed, however, that her marriage will mean parting for her and her film star daughter.

For she and her husband will move to New York, where he expects to lead his own orchestra at a famous restaurant.

F. R. B. Index Holds Steady

The seasonally adjusted index of industrial production, based on 1923-25 as 100, stood at 114 for the two months—four points under the level for March, April and May.

UNWISE Political MOVES

ECONOMICS PREVAIL

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Aug. 27—The news concerning the railways and the cotton situation certainly shows the inevitable working of economic laws. In both cases, we now face troubles because of unwise political interference in the past.

In both cases, the question now is, can we not learn by experience, so that we may avoid the mistakes previously made?

The result of economic law, or the fact that scientific principles govern our business life, is seen in two great facts. The first fact is that an artificial increase in the price of goods or service above the competitive rate is either "shifted" by causing other prices to rise, or else the supply of the goods or service is stopped. The second fact is that mere changes in money have no specific or definitely predictable results.

Over and over again we see some group in society having political power and going to the government to get a special fiat to raise the price of its product.

One of the inevitable results is now being beautifully illustrated by the moves being made by the railways toward securing a general advance in freight rates. This move they are making in order to offset the several hundred millions of increased expenses caused by higher wages, materials and taxes. Such an advance in freight rates would increase the cost of almost every product you can think of. Of course, it would add to the cost of living of the laborers.

And partly this goes back to the raise in steel workers' wages, which raised the price of steel to the railways.

Always we have to remember, too, that some high-cost producers have to take such action, even if others could stand the increased cost. Today, for example, it is the so-called marginal roads that can hardly pay as it is, which are unable to bear the 20 per cent increase in basic wage rates that the operating unions are asking.

These marginal roads are the ones which fail first, and are likely to lead the way to government ownership and operation.

In the case of cotton, artificial price boosting has doubtless made shirts and work clothing cost more than otherwise. The most disastrous of the inevitable results, however, has been the permanent loss of foreign markets.

Now comes the question, what is the government to do with the million and a half bales of cotton it has been carrying for the farmers for years? If the large new crop is to be sold, what is to be done with the surplus of old crops?

As to money changes. The most recent illustration is the fact that results of "devaluation" in France have turned out so differently from what the French New Dealers had anticipated. As usual, the price averages did not rise anything like in proportion to the devaluation.

Over and over again, we find that when we artificially make more currency, we have to borrow or to "devalue" the money unit (as by adopting "the 59-cent dollar"). The result is the bank deposits and excess reserves are swollen, prices of such things as steel and copper start to run away, and cost of living rises. Then we find that the more money is no better than the less.

You see, we do not want money for itself. Its service is as a medium of exchange, and as a standard for measuring the values of other things. Therefore, what we do to money has exceedingly broad and complicated effects.

It works only through buying and selling, according to the eternal laws of supply and demand. If the additional currency comes into the hands of those who have a strong desire for certain goods (say automobiles) the demand for those goods increases. If the supply is limited, the price of that particular goods will rise. But if people can't find employment to earn money, or if uncertainty as to the value of money makes them hesitate to buy, then nothing much may happen.

All these things are according to the laws of economic science. Unless and until we change human nature of its physical environment, these laws enable us to foresee results. The great need today is to study economic laws before passing political laws or issuing dictatorial edicts.

Byers' Dividend

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Directors of A. M. Byers Company, Pittsburgh, makers of wrought iron pipe, declared today a dividend of $2.50 on the preferred, payable September 20 to stock of record September 7. The last payment was 50 cents on November 1, 1933.

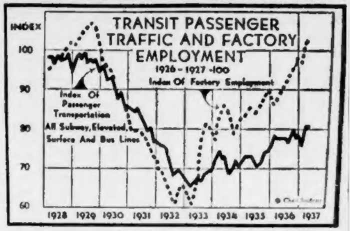
Passenger Transportation



The index of passenger transportation as shown by the chart comprises about 90 per cent of the total traffic on subways, bus lines and elevated and surface lines in the United States.

To the extent that factory employment is an adequate measure of all types of employment, the chart is significant because it shows what influence if any employment changes have upon transit traffic.

Using 1926-27 equal to 100, the trend lines of both employment and passenger traffic are similar. However, since 1935 the upward surge of factory employment has been at a more accelerated pace than the rise in passenger traffic.

Latest figures by the American Transit Association show that the index of passenger traffic is still about 19 per cent under the 1926-27 period. On the other hand, factory employment is about 3 per cent above the base period.

BUSINESS TRENDS

Recovery Witnessed in July

New York, Aug. 27—Business activity as a whole recovered substantially during the month of July, but still remains below the average attained during the third quarter of 1936, according to the regular monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board.

Greater-than-seasonal rises in output of the construction, iron and steel, newsprint, and electric power industries more than counter-balanced declines in the automobile, petroleum and non-ferrous metal fields. Loadings of freight on Class I railroads advanced, as did retail sales in urban areas. Retail business in small towns and rural areas, however, declined from the June level by more than the usual seasonal amount.

Automobile production in the United States and Canada totaled 456,775 units during July, as compared with 451,206 units in July, 1936. As a result of a shutdown in the Ford plants toward the middle of the month, total output declined by more than the usual seasonal amounts from the June level of operations. Ford reopened on August 9, and August production of the entire industry is expected to show somewhat less than the usual seasonal recession.

Construction activity as a whole advanced to the highest level for the recovery period. Total contracts awarded in 37 Eastern states, as reported by the F. W. Dodge Corporation, amounted to $321,602,700, exceeding the previous high figure reported in June of this year by 1.2 per cent and representing an increase of 9.1 per cent over the value of contracts awarded in July 1, 1936.

The July advance was due entirely to increases in non-residential and public utility awards, which were higher than a year ago by 44 per cent and 82 per cent respectively.

Activity in both types of building reached the highest level since the middle of 1930. Residential construction, on the other hand, continued to decline by more than seasonal amounts, and is lagging considerably behind expectations expressed earlier in the year.

Production of steel ingots during the first seven months of this year was only slightly below that for the corresponding period of 1929, fell only 100,000 tons short of output for the full year 1935, and exceeded the average annual production from 1931-34. Activity is expected to increase materially with the advent of the fall buying season, and some authorities believe that production of open hearth and Bessemer ingots this year will reach a new record total of approximately 56.5 million tons.

Production of electricity registered the sharpest gain among the fuel and power industries during July, with output expanding in more than seasonal proportions to reach a new all-time high level. Bituminous coal production showed only minor changes. Crude petroleum output, on a seasonally adjusted basis, remained well below the recovery peak registered during May, 1937.

REVIVAL Seen Next MONTH

PICKUP IS EXPECTED

New York, Aug. 27—In its weekly summary of the general business situation, the Standard Statistics Company of New York currently comments as follows:

Although business activity is now approaching the summer low point, signs are beginning to appear that the downtrend will be checked and reversed before long. For the first time in a number of weeks there has been an improvement in steel demand and although orders are still running below shipments, it is expected that the difference between orders and shipments will be narrowed, and possibly completely eliminated, within the next month to six weeks.

The automobile industry is operating at close to its probable low point for the year. A number of companies have suspended operations for model change-overs and others are expected to follow during the next week or two. Because of the likelihood that there will be comparatively minor model changes this year, the change-over period will probably be brief and production of 1938 models should be well under way by the end of September. Prospects for the industry over the remainder of 1937, at least, are generally promising.

Because of the recent sharp decline in prices of a number of agricultural products there has been some concern as to whether there will be much, if any, expansion in farm purchasing power during the next year. We see no reason, however, to change our previously expressed opinion that there will be a worthwhile gain in farm income from this year's crops.

Wholesale Trade Improvement Is Slight

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—A slower tempo in wholesale trade, with only slight improvement in retail distribution, was reported today by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., in a weekly business summary.

The mercantile agency pointed out shifting between-season currents obscured trends as buyers divided attention between autumn and late summer merchandise.

"As little stimulus was provided for building inventories," the summary said, "buying in wholesale markets turned slower, awaiting consumer approval of goods assembled. The temporary slackening of industrial operations was confined largely to the automobile, building materials, footwear and some of the textile divisions.

"More purchases in agricultural areas offset some of the lag in the industrial sections of the middle west. Yet the spread over last year's retail sales was narrowed to 8 to 16 per cent.

"Up for the week, purchases in the northwest were 12 to 16 per cent larger than a year ago. Further improvement in the south extended the range to 12 to 20 per cent. With the peak flow of early crop money already passed, the increase for the southwest was reduced to 15 to 20 per cent.

"Helped by special clearances and favorable weather, broadening demand put Pacific coast retailing ahead of their sales for the corresponding 1936 week by 10 to 20 per cent."

Curb Stocks Hit Down Trail

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Selected oil and specialty shares hit the down trail today as the curb market dwadled along a narrow path.

Two important crude oil producers slumped around a point as traders weighed the possibilities of over-production. Humble gave up slightly over a point and South Penn Oil receded about the same amount.

Nehi Corp. slid around 1½ and Le Tourneau was lower. Utilities were quiet for the most part.

Insurance Post To E. S. French

Edward S. French, president of the Boston & Maine and Maine Central railroads, and a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston and trustee of Dartmouth College, has been elected a director of the Union Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Portland, Me., to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of former Governor William T. Cobb. Mr. French will also serve as a member of the finance committee.

Commercial Credit

Baltimore, Aug. 27 (AP)—Directors of Commercial Credit Company declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly payment of $1.00, payable September 30 to shareholders of record September 10.

Bay State Activity Steady

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The Massachusetts State Planning Board's index of industrial activities for July shows that while general business throughout the state fell slightly below that of June, it continued to hold above the corresponding 1936 figure.

The decrease in activity during July is attributed mostly to a more than seasonal recession in new building construction and the falling off of shoe production from the same period last year. Employment actually showed a slight increase in July over June while power was up by a rather sizable amount considering its previous high level. Both figures also stand well above comparable figures for July 1936. For the first seven months of this year the Planning Board's index shows a gain of 15 per cent over the like months of last year. The individual components of the index showed gains as follows: Construction 32 per cent, industrial employment 14 per cent, power 10 per cent, shoes 10 per cent, textiles 16 per cent.

A more current picture of business conditions, including the other New England states, is available in Dun & Bradstreet's Weekly Review. Manufacturing is still displaying a slight downtrend, but is making a good showing in that it is considerably ahead of last year. Factory payrolls are much in excess of a year ago. Huge sums are being spent at principal resorts and with favorable crop conditions indicated a halt in the decline of business activity, in evidence since the middle of March, is considered more than likely.

Typical of the brightening New England picture is a report the Fore River Shipyards of Quincy are now very busy, having orders of over 40 million on hand. It is said that an increase in the number of employees from 3500 to 4000 is imminent. Later on a further stepping up to around 5000 is expected by some who profess to be in touch with this local subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel.

* * *

The stock market looks as though it had enough reaction to this observer, if prices are not discounting something more calamitous than is now discernible. While it is true that the war news is serious, and a series of unfortunate events has attended hostilities, as yet at least there is no reason to believe other nations will become embroiled. If anything is to be said at this time it is that a temporary selling climax has been witnessed and while it is painful it is not without it's good points. It means the elimination of scale bullish accounts and the creation of buying opportunities for the large number of investors and traders who have not been participating in the market for many weeks.

* * *

Insofar as the threatened rail strike is concerned we apply the old formula of never selling such news. The worst is definitely known now and the whole situation is fraught with possibilities pointing to a compromise settlement. It is also a fact that on the basis of the railroad's request for rate increases, some sort of an agreement may be worked out whereby the brotherhood will wait until the attitude of the ICC can be determined.

Bay State Apple Crop Reported

Amherst, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP)—A 25 per cent increase in the Massachusetts commercial apple crop was reported today by the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association.

Replies from more than 100 commercial growers indicated the MacIntosh crop in 1937 will show an increase of 14 per cent while all other varities will show an increase of 42 per cent.

This meant, W. R. Cole, secretary of the association, reported, the 1937 apple crop in Massachusetts will be approximately 1,633,000 bushels as compared with 1,311,000 bushels for the 1936 crop.

STEELS Trip MARKET

RALLY TRYS FEEBLE

New York, Aug. 27—Selling in steels tripped up the stock market today after early feeble rallying attempts failed to carry through. Rails were better for a time, along with several utilities and specialities, but most stumbled in the latter part of the session.

Losses of fractions to two or more points were widely distributed near the final hour, but volume was considerably under that of yesterday.

Bonds and commodities were mixed. The principal foreign currencies were lower in terms of the dollar.

Inland Steel shares dropped about 4 points on top of a 7-point reaction yesterday. Inclined to give ground were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, St. Joseph Lead, American Metal, Du Pont, General Electric, Standard Oil of N. J., Socony Vacuum, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Northen Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Locomotive, Radio, Loew's, Paramount and American Radiator.

SANTA FE RESISTANT

Resistant were Santa Fe, which received some support on an upturn in July net operating income; Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Consolidated Edison, North American, American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Philip Morris, National Distillers, Deere, Pathe Film and Briggs Manufacturing.

Sears Roebuck, despite a favorable 24-weeks' net, retreat a point or so. Myers & Bro. was also off on a good profits showing. A. M. Byers preferred stepped up following payment of $2.50 a share on dividend accumulations.

ANALYSTS WATCH TRADE

In addition to Far Eastern war complications, market analysts gave closer attention to domestic trade trends.

Narrowing of both retail and wholesale gains this week over the comparative period last year was noted in the survey of Dun & Bradstreet.

Holders of motor issues studied figures of the Department of Commerce disclosing dollar volume of retail financing of new passenger automobiles in July was almost 10 per cent under that of the same 1836 month.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions sterling was off ⅛ cent at $4.97⅝. The French franc was .00⅛ of a cent lower at 3.74⅝ cents.

ICC Offcials Say Rate Decision Is Due Soon

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—Interstate Commerce Commission officials said today a decision on a request from railroads for an increase in freight rates cannot be "reasonably expected" before next October 1.

Nine of the eleven commissioners are out of the city and a quorum is not expected to be assembled before September 15.

The case concerns the so-called heavy commodity list which was withdrawn from the general rate case and submitted separately for early decision. This list includes coal, iron and steel, ore, petroleum and its products, lime, plaster and cement.

Gross revenues of leading carriers showed an 11 per cent gain during the first half of this year as compared with 1936, but increased costs absorbed more than two-thirds of this gain.

Carloadings Show Increase

Washington, Aug. 27 (INS)—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended Aug. 21, totalled 781,247 cars, an increase of 3865 cars above the preceding week and an increase of 45,771 cars above the corresponding week in 1936, the Association of American Railroads announced today.

SEED Oils Hit by WAR

WORLD'S BEST FROM EAST

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The spreading of hostilities in the Far East is of almost vital importance to one section of American business—the processing of seed oils.

The Sino-Japanese area is one of the world's heaviest in the production of oils and oilseeds. From China in 1936 came all of the 134,000,000 pounds of tung oil imported by the United States. Known also as Chinawood oil, this is a basic ingredient in fine paints. China also was the source of all of the 7,900,000 pounds of teaseed oil brought into the United States last year.

Of 49,000,000 pounds of peanut oil imported in '36, China supplied 33,000,000 pounds, while Japan supplied virtually all of the 5,400,000 gallons of rapeseed oil consumed by American firms last year.

In recent years, the soy bean crop has increased steadily in the United States, amounting to more than 30,000,000 bushels last year. But the plains of Manchuria—out of which Japan created the puppet state of Manchoukuo—still produce the great bulk of soy beans, which Japan exports all over the world. In the first six months of this year the United States imported 21,000,000 pounds of soy bean oil.

RICH FOOD OIL

One of the richest of food oils used in this country is sesame oil. Last year, the United States imported 117,000,000 pounds of sesame seed, the equivalent of around 50,000,000 pounds of oils. Of this amount, 109,000,000 pounds of seed came from China and 4,000,000 from Japan.

The extensive use of such far eastern oils and oilseeds has brought some concern in the American trade. There is not only the fear of usual disruption resulting from warfare, but the threat of the Japanese government of a blockade of all shipping from Chinese ports.

This concern does not extend to cottonseed oil, crude and refine. While Japan and China supplied around 30 per cent of the cottonseed oil entering this country last year and the first part of '37, the prospective large cotton crop this year is expected to eliminate danger of shortage. This country became a large importer of cottonseed oils with the curtailment of the cotton crop in the last few years, when the yield averaged between 8½ and 12 million bales. The estimate for this season is above 15,000,000 bales.

Rail Needs Listed by Binkerd

By ROBERT S. BINKERD

Vice-President The Baldwin Locomotive Works

Special to Boston Evening American

Philadelphia, Aug. 27—It was just about a year ago that Mr. Rukeyser accorded me the use of this column for a day, which I devoted to a discussion of the equipment needs of our railroads accumulated during the depression since 1929. I assume it would be of interest to review this situation and bring it up to date.

Accordingly, I set forth below my last year's estimate of the annual requirements of our railroads during the next five years for freight train cars, passenger train cars and locomotives. Against this I list the orders for each class of equipment for the years 1935 and 1936:

	Estim. Annual Requirements	1935 Orders	1936 Orders
Freight train cars	125,000	17,784	45,712
Pass. train cars	2,000	63	267
Locomotives	2,000	27	471

In each type of equipment it will be noted that the 1936 orders showed substantial increase over the orders for the preceding year. 1936 freight car orders were about two and one-half times those of 1935; 1936 passenger train car orders were approximately five times those of 1935; and 1936 locomotive orders were more than seventeen times those of 1935.

Notwithstanding the sizeable increase in the 1936 orders, in each case they still represent the satisfaction of only a small part of the existing need. If the earning capacity of our railroads is not again knocked down to nothing by wage increase and unwise legislation like the 70-car train limit bill recently passed by the United States Senate, a great expansion of the buying of railroad equipment should still be in front of us.

It can be taken for granted that the new freight train and passenger train cars represented by the purchases of these past two years show a substantial reduction in deadweight over the cars which they replaced. The average reduction in the weight per freight car is probably somewhere around four tons and the average reduction in the deadweight of railroad day coaches is 15 tons or more.

So, in addition to the economy of new equipment over old, they will also help to contribute other economies of operation due to the reduction in the amount of work required to move them at any given speed. Reduction in the deadweight of cars of all kinds will probably continue to be an outstanding feature for the next decade.

The fact that the increase of 1936 locomotive orders over 1935 is far greater than in other classes of railroad equipment is in accord with the economics of the situation.

As I pointed out last year, only about one-tenth of all railroad investment is in locomotives, but nearly one-third of all railroad operating expense revolves around the repair and operation of this one-tenth of the investment.

Hence, in the rapid modernization of the existing locomotive inventory there is a leverage which will not only readily pay for the new locomotives, but contribute substantial earning power to the balance of railroad investment, to say nothing of the fact that more rapid and certain movement decreases the number of freight train cars or passenger train cars required to supply a given amount of transportation.

It is also interesting to note that the 1936 purchases consisted of 425 steam locomotives, 45 Diesel-electric locomotives and one straight electric locomotive. This indicates again that the main reliance for better and more profitable railroad service in this country as well as elsewhere is the steam locomotive.

The probability is that 1937 will see one or more new fleets of steam locomotives ordered which will register substantial increases in power, thermal efficiency and economy over existing concepts of modern steam practice.

A great deal more attention will be paid to appearance but the tendency to hang five to ten tons of deadweight on a locomotive in the form of streamlining seems likely to give way to styling which accomplishes all the so-called streamlining does but avoids unnecessary deadweight and retains the functional appearance of the locomotive.

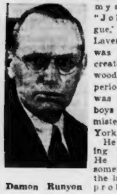
One of the greatest things that could be done to further promote recovery and to bring into action the great field of demand represented by these equipment needs of our railroads, would be to just let them alone for a while and encourage them to go ahead as they are only too anxious to do.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and All Other Rights Reserved.)

After you talk with him a few minutes, it is easy to understand the warm friendships that the once mysterious "John Montague," otherwise Laverne Moore, was able to create in Hollywood during the period that he was what the boys term a lammister from New York Sate.



Damon Runyon

He has amazing personality. He has that something that the ladies would probably call charm. Listening to Mr. McDonald, the upstate district attorney, recite at Elizabethtown the other day, the details of a somewhat sordid crime, it was difficult to believe that he was talking about the soft-spoken, well-mannered Montague.

Probably it was like a bad dream it difficult to believe. Even though he were that Laverne Moore of seven years back that the district attorney was talking about in connection with robbery, and blackjackings, it is unlikely that after long peace and quiet, and respectability, and of living another life, under another identity, he could easily recognize as himself that midnight prowler the D. A. was recalling.

JUST A NIGHTMARE

Probably it was like a bed dream to Montague as he sat in the little old courtroom in the mountain town, and heard read to him a chapter allegedly out of his own life, in which the characters must have been mere shadows against the bygone years, and their wrongful deeds, but the figment of an uneasy slumber that would fade with the coming of morning.

It is our guess that the John Montague of today could not even contemplate a crime of the nature alleged against Laverne Moore.

Montague, physically, is Moore, all right, as he himself admits, without admitting the offense charged to Moore, yet they can scarcely be the same men morally, or spiritually, from what is alleged against Moore, and from what some eminently respectable persons in Hollywood say of Montague.

But it is the Laverne Moore of seven years ago that stands accused up in Essex county, and not the John Montague of today, and no allowance is made by the law of the land for the years that lie between the two identities, during which the one remade himself into the other.

MONTAGUE'S BAD LUCK

The law cannot recognize a change of this kind. The law was after Laverne Moore, has nailed Laverne Moore, but in nailing Laverne Moore, it has also nailed John Montague, an entirely different man now, off performance, in every way except physically.

That is John Montague's bad luck at the moment.

The most incredible part of John Montague's story is that he lived it in Hollywood, where a horde of story writers are always looking for stories, but where this one would probably have been rejected as too improbable. It would have been declared exceeding the bounds of reasonable fiction.

Montague is an exceptionally intelligent man. As Laverne Moore, he had some idea of becoming a lawyer.

He is the type of man that sticks out in a crowd. His general appearance is distinguishing, because he is below medium height, but of unusually powerful build for his inches. He is a good-looking chap.

He has small hands, and short thick arms that suggest some of the strength in driving that is said to be his golfing forte.

Perhaps if it had not been for his golf, John Montague would never have attracted the attention of the sports writers who billed him as a super-golfer, and thus eventually brought him to the attention of the questing New York State troopers.

Some of his old home town acquaintances say that as Laverne Moore he played professional baseball, and once had a tryout with the Boston Braves.

But for his golf and mystery, John Montague might have remained in obscurity and complete freedom for years to come, but we gathered from an occasional remark that he is somewhat relieved that the denouement has come. He no longer need have any trepidation about the ghost of Laverne Moore.

Britain Rebuked

THERE is no comfort for the British Government in the report of the Mandates Commission of the League of Nations approving the Palestine partition scheme "in principle."

The term "scathing" can properly be used to describe the Commission's biting criticism of British action in Palestine.

It says bluntly that "decisive measures at an earlier date" COULD HAVE PREVENTED VIOLENCE.

It says the present mandate, which Britain now says is unworkable, did not become unworkable UNTIL BRITAIN SAID IT WAS.

And it adds:

"A certain fluctuation in policy by the mandatory power tended to encourage the belief on the part of Arabs that VIOLENCE could stop Jewish immigration."

All these facts were revealed long ago by the unofficial commission sent to Palestine by the Hearst newspapers, and are now supported in the strongest possible language by the Mandates Commission.

A Jewish homeland is still THE FUNDAMENTAL OBJECTIVE to be gained in Palestine, in the interest of humanity and justice.

The Hearst newspapers have always said, as the Mandates Commission now says:

"The Arabs' and Jews' collective sufferings are not comparable, since vast spaces in the Near East are open to the former, whereas the world is increasingly being closed to settlement by the latter."

Wise Folks Will Listen

BOSTON and Federal police, once more cracking down on lottery and sweepstakes activities, again warn would-be investors.

There may be another attempt to swindle Bay State people in a gigantic no-payoff scheme, they say.

Wise citizens will heed this warning — that is, if they value their hard-earned money.

Actually, the no-payoff probability is not important to the average person. The odds against his collecting anything are always overwhelming. Even an "honest" lottery is the next best thing to burning one's cash in the kitchen range.

The regrettable thing about lotteries in general is that they prey on individuals who can ill afford to lose. More fortunate individuals—those who can part company with a dollar and never deplore the parting—usually avoid them.

Consequently police officers who smash lotteries and punish the operators accomplish a public service. They are proof that the law can at times save us from ourselves.

Subtle as Lightning Bolt

IT is possible to attach a sinister meaning to sections dealing with the Sacco-Vanzetti case in the recently published Massachusetts Guidebook.

That, according to press dispatches, is the rather reluctant admission of Henry G. Alsberg, national director of the Federal writers' relief project.

Director Alsberg should study Massachusetts history, then look over this mislabeled "guide." That ought to convince him that the "sinister meaning" is about as subtle as a bolt of lightning going through a paper house.

And if he did study Massachusetts history, Director Alsberg might also be able to explain why this "guide" directed tourists to the scene of a particularly cold-blooded murder and entirely omitted mention of the town of Andover, where the hymn, "America," was written and where the world-famous author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is buried.

Reaping the First Harvest

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY, as chairman of the nation's Maritime Commission, planted the seeds of courage and inspiration, and New England reaps her share of the dollar harvest that results.

Since Saturday three vessels have been launched in this section—at Bath, Me., Portsmouth, N. H., and Fore River.

Many other ships, large and small, are rapidly nearing completion. Shipyards are working to capacity.

The country should give Chairman Kennedy the cooperation he asks. Our present prosperity and future security depend on our having NOW the kind of Merchant Marine he wants to give us.

To delay or to permit anyone or anything to interfere with the shipbuilding program is to injure ourselves, collectively and individually.

What Most of Us Need

THE Rev. William D. O'Leary, S. J., of Alabama, lecturing at the Boston Parochial School Teachers' Institute, gives us something to think about.

"Emotions may be considered as so many wild animals which it is one's duty and job to train," he says.

"Controlled emotions are an ally to happiness, add joy to our lives and spirit, and zest to our endeavors and accomplishments. Emotions take the drab out of existence and add power, grace and beauty to ordinary things.

"Uncontrolled emotions—such as anger, envy, fear, worry and sorrow—not only interfere with rational thinking, but injure health and ruin nervous systems."

Good advice, this. It's what most of us need.

We Ought to Know Now

A BRIGHT spot in the record of things done or not done in Washington is the enactment of a bill calling for an unemployment census.

On the basis of the facts to be thus revealed, we will know for the first time what the nation actually needs for jobless relief.

Until now, we have been guessing about that, probably GUESSING TOO HIGH.

For the tenth successive month, the United States Employment Service reports a decline in the number of people seeking jobs.

Our spending for relief ought to be declining in proportion, BUT WE KNOW IT IS NOT. The new relief appropriation is a billion and a half!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 27—Thoughts while strolling: For one of Alva Johnston's searching profiles: Herb Swope. No athletes so modest as the tennis stars. Dick Berlin's car R. B. 6. Those spic and span cadets down from West Point. Whatever became of Louis Calhern?

O. O. McIntyre

Memory: Unhooking the hammock during a sudden shower. In a two way hat, Joe Bryan III would make a dandy Sherlock Holmes. And Max Gordon standing hatless before the corner cigar store would look like the proprietor. Colonel Joe Hartfield doesn't walk, he bounds. And Gene Buck skims.

But add up all the walks and you have nothing to compare with the swagger of Hope Williams.

Joe Louis could do all right with a cafe in Harlem when he hangs up his gloves. If there's such a thing as a trencherwoman, Lois Long is one.

The flip talkers' overworked catch line: "Don't let it throw you!" But best of all was their: "Is everything under control?"

Adela Rogers St. Johns has a German shepherd dog that is carrying on an old school sort of companionship with a neighbor's Chesapeake setter at her estate at Great Neck, L. I. Every other day they exchange formal afternoon calls, sitting about awhile politely, perhaps playing a bit and then stretching out for naps.

On especially hot days they trot down to the Sound together for a swim.

Their visits are always alternate—not once has one gone to visit the other twice in succession. Formality, no end.

Few New York police commissioners have been so thoroughly hated by the underworld as the present incumbent, Edward Valentine. And the hatred is mutual.

The commissioner is unable to conceal his scorn and contempt for old offenders or those who try to evade the law by hiring high-priced lawyers.

When such crooks are brought before him, he shows them no courtesy whatever, and if they show any inclination to talk back he can scarcely restrain himself from hopping up from his desk and swinging a few from the ankle.

As a police reporter for a number of years, I never saw a really courageous crook. One who, caught, would stand up bravely as in the movies, and sneer "So what?" The moment they realize the breaks are against them they wilt and snivel.

Sometimes under the soporific of drink or drugs when first brought in they show a bravado, but once the stimulants wear off they cringe. I have seen the toughest cry like babies when cuffed a bit. They will gang up and shoot a cop or fire from ambush, but never slug toe to toe.

One veteran police chief told me that in his experience he had never seen a hardened criminal not yellow at the core. In nothing do they play fair, always they seek advantage.

I'm forever wondering how Percy Crosby keeps "Skippy" skedaddling along in such top form through interminable strips, always provoking a smile, perhaps a slight throat twitch or inspiring some agreeable jet of philosophic thought.

On paper they seem so easy and casual. But such ideas do not just pop into mind. They are products of stewing in one's own juice, a travail of torment with the dead-line only a few hours away.

My admiration for Crosby was enhanced today because it has been one for me of utter mental sterility. I have straightened one of Peter Arno's framed originals a dozen times, counted the window panes in the side of Bill Corum's hotel across the roof top, got myself squirted up with red ink cleaning two fountain pens and looked up such words as syzygy and silicic in the dictionary.

Those days are not frequent, but they come often enough to hurl a typewriter out the window and follow it with a despairing shriek.

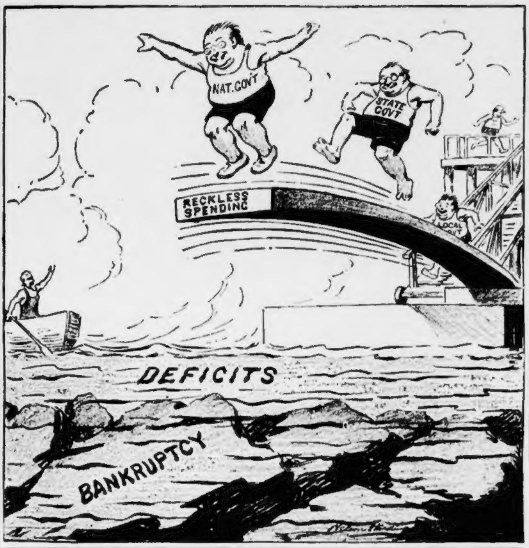
Don't Dive at Low Tide!

By Nelson Harding



Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

She was so lonely—

Just another old widow whose folks had all gone on ahead.

"Minnie Draper . . . aged 76 . . . requiescat in pace" . . . sometimes as she lay sleepless in the hollow night, she could seem to read the scant words traced upon the narrow space that waited in Forest Home Cemetery, beside the boy and his father and the little grandson.

Elsie Robinson

Not much of a space. Only room for two more. Yet that was all she had left . . . the only real home, after all the hoping and loving—Strange how life could narrow down into a scrap of space like that . . . and a weariness of empty, useless days.

Outside lights flickered, faces floated, voices called. She leaned forward, pressing her face against the moving darkness like a child peering through a pane. Peering . . . longing.

If only there were somebody there for her . . . somebody who needed her . . . some young thing who'd come laughing, coaxing as George had done. Unconsciously she whimpered . . . moving fluttering fingers over faded lips . . . then dragged listlessly back to her chair, evening paper in hand.

Headlines? Headlines were like everything else—they didn't seem to mean much of anything, now that George had gone. She fumbled for her glasses—read slowly. War in China—Trouble in Spain—That Supreme Court squabble—Rita Lane—

NOBODY CARED

"Rita Lane"? What . . . who . . . why'd that name stick? Oh—now she remembered. That girl—poor child—who'd killed herself and her unborn baby. Young, they said she was—and pretty. With all her life before her. And now she lay there dead.

Dead . . . No one to love her or claim her . . . No one to take her in . . . "Rita Lane"—Maybe that wasn't even her name. Nobody knew. Nobody cared—

But suppose—

Suddenly she sat erect, trembling a little, her hand rolling, unrolling, the seam of her dress—

Suppose, even now when it was so late, someone did care . . . someone should let her know she wasn't forgotten . . .?

Suppose someone should still claim her—her and her little one—?

MIGHTN'T SHE KNOW, EVEN NOW, WHEREVER SHE WAS . . . MIGHTN'T SHE STILL KNOW THAT SOMEONE HAD TAKEN THEM HOME?

The paper had fallen to the floor . . . a telephone jangled . . . but she did not notice—

She was tugging on her coat . . . hurrying to the door . . .

A bird called. A leaf yellowing early—drifted down the quiet air. Along the gravelled path, moving between barred light and shadow, came a file of careful feet . . . a murmur of voices . . . a soft thud as a slender casket came to rest.

Again the bird's call came. The last light deepened . . . widened on the path . . . lay on the casket like a sheltering wing . . . turned the pit's darkness to a waiting home. And now a man's voice spoke—

"I AM THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE—"

HE ALONE KNEW

She'd been so young, that little thing who died. She'd been so frightened, in the grip of shame. But there was One who held the cure for pain—

"Nearer my God, to Thee—
"Nearer to Thee—"

The kind earth slipped . . . the stars shone through the silence . . . somewhere a lost girl, and her baby, were at home.

* * *

She was so lonely—little old Minnie Draper—

Life seemed so useless, now that Dad and George had gone—

But somehow tonight it wasn't so hard to bear. Almost it seemed as if someone sat beside her . . . someone young and laughing, as George had been. Almost it seemed as if Someone bent above her . . . Someone tall and shining—hadn't she heard His name?

She sat back trying to remember . . . strangely comforted and content. How warm her heart felt tonight . . . how useful life seemed, once more. What was that voice . . . and those lovely words it was saying—?

"I WAS A STRANGER AND YE TOOK ME IN: NAKED, AND YE CLOTHED ME: SICK AND YE VISITED ME: I WAS IN PRISON AND YE CAME UNTO ME . . . VERILY I SAY UNTO YOU—INASMUCH AS YE HAVE DONE IT UNTO ONE OF THE LEAST OF THESE, MY BRETHREN, YE HAVE DONE IT UNTO ME."

LOVE IN REVERSE

Judging from the front-page news this must be the open season for shooting ex-wives. The season for shooting husbands is never closed.

One good woman with a reform spirit or a match-making complex can do more to wreck a lot of lives than a dozen less "worthy" women who mind their own business.

The only kind of woman that a man thinks he understands is the girl who treats him casually, gayly and lightly—just as most men treat women. His love will blossom like the rose under a girl's cool, sweet indifference—but it seems to shrivel right up under the actinic rays of a warm response.

It is no trouble at all for a man to keep a woman guessing; the trouble is that she has such an embarrassing way of guessing RIGHT most of the time.

Don't forget that while the Big Thrill in a summer love-affair may be the nibble at the bait, the real test consists in landing your catch before the season closes.

Love can never be defined because it is never the same thing in two people. What is love to a callow youth would seem like farce-comedy to a seasoned Lothario; and what is love to a poet would seem like paranoia to a hard-boiled business man.

Never judge a man's love by his pleasure in being near you—the only real proof is his inability to stay AWAY from you.

Men know what they like in women. They do not care for holocausts of temperament, but neither do they care for human icebergs. They tire of clinging dumbells and flee from predatory Amazons. I guess they just want women to be WOMEN.

Love is the sweet hallucination that the man of the moment is going to be the man of your life!

A few years ago thrills were the Big Motif in every popular novel, play and song—and most of the after-dinner conversation. But now, even the crooners stick to romance and sing of "moons" and "Junes" instead of about torrid love and burning kisses.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

The reasoning of Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher of Chicago in an informal opinion that marriages of Illinois residents performed outside the State to evade its laws are illegal may not be sound law but there is a lot of good common sense in it.

Referring to weddings, performed for Illinois citizens who went into Indiana to be married, he said: "These marriages entered into by residents of our State are void and cannot possibly be legal because they attempt to dodge the restrictions and public policy of this State."

He suggested a test case should be instituted to have this question finally determined.

No State will grant a divorce until the applicant has established residence there. True, the residence requirements in some States which specialize in the amputation of matrimonial ties are pretty much of a joke.

But they do provide a period of time during which the applicant for divorce can think over the step he or she is planning to take.

If States would refuse to issue marriage licenses to non-residents unless they could show they were not seeking to evade the laws of their home State, that would prevent many hasty, ill-considered marriages and make many divorces unnecessary.

A WPA supervisor in Kansas City, Mo., posted $26,000 worth of property as bond for a friend in a court proceeding.

That calls attention to the fact that the best paying jobs under our work relief system have NOT gone to the people who most needed assistance.

THEY HAVE BEEN DISTRIBUTED ON A PATRONAGE BASIS TO WORTHY POLITICIANS.

The lowest paid, pick and shovel jobs have gone to the needy, but the supervisory and administrative snaps have been reserved for the politicians who could not qualify for relief.

There isn't any reason why the WPA administration staff could not have been selected almost entirely from people who were on or were eligible for direct relief.

Frequently, they are like New Year's resolutions.

But when John Lumpkin, oil company executive, lost his only son in the New London (Tex.) school disaster he made a vow which he is keeping to devote a part of his time to human service and particularly to serving children.

In keeping his pledge to himself, he has purchased a 30-passenger bus and on Sundays he hauls children of his district and their parents to and from Sunday school and church services.

Not many would have thought of giving that kind of service.

Love Moves a River

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

One of the most romantic stories in many a day brightens the news from foreign parts. Love, they say, can move mountains. In Yugoslavia it has actually moved a river.

Edwin C. Hill

Long ago a royal prince of Bosnia, riding through a beautiful valley near Sarajevo, saw a peasant girl working in the fields. Promptly he fell in love with her. He could have had his choice of a dozen ladies of high birth and wealth, but his heart demanded the girl who was toiling like a man in her father's fields.

And the father refused the Prince's suit and told him to be on his way, because the Prince was a Mohammedan and the girl of the Christian faith.

The hard-hearted father locked the girl up and the Prince, in his disappointment and rage, bought up all the land surrounding the farm, blocked the springs which produced the stream that watered the fields and made them fertile, and dammed up the stream itself. The farmer killed his daughter, laid a curse on the springs and the stream and then took his own life.

LOVE CONQUERS

All that took place six hundred years ago. But read on:

Only the other day a rich land owner, Paul Laszlo, driving through the same valley, saw a beautiful goose-girl tending her birds and a few sheep on the land where the prince had lost his heart to the peasant girl.

And Laszlo, the millionaire, like the prince of olden time, fell head over heels in love with the golden-haired goose-girl. But, as in the long-ago, the peasant father said no.

Luckily for the lovers, marriage in the Yugoslav countryside concerns the whole village, and the old men, fearful that the ancient curse might again wither their valley, added their warnings to the millionaire's pleas.

The farmer gave in. He and his wife proudly aired the linen collected for their daughter from childhood and chose her a plump pig, a sheep or two and a few clucking chickens from their poor barnyard.

At daybreak the young couple went to the spring, and suddenly it began to flow. Laszlo hired workmen to clear away the earth and stones which blocked the stream. Today it flows freely, and the natives hail a miracle wrought by the power of love.

There was a day when the famous dogs of the Hospice of St. Bernard, in the Swiss Alps, were famous the world over for their gentleness, their intelligence and their remarkable record in rescuing lost travelers from the Alpine snows.

Now comes Dr. J. Bremond of Geneva to assert that the modern St. Bernards are not pure-bred, that they are ferocious and dangerous, and that innumerable unprovoked attacks have been made on visitors, but were hushed up out of regard for the monks of St. Bernard and for fear of injuring one of Switzerland's principal tourist attractions.

DEMANDS DOGS' DOOM

Dr. Bremond demands that the dogs be removed from the hospice. They no longer do any rescue work, and they are penned in so continually that they have become unreliable and ugly. So he says.

The Mata Hari of the Spanish Civil War is a French-born ballet dancer, Jeanne Constance Gerogel, imprisoned in anarchist Barcelona as a Fascist spy.

Instead of shooting her offhand her Anarchist captors sent her to prison in typically romantic Latin fashion. They escorted her there in a taxicab filled with flowers. She rode in state, holding her pet dog in her lap.

The prison governor first met the woman who was to spell his doom when she sent her dog to him with a note explaining that the animal did not like her cell. That brought about a visit from the governor to the beautiful spy. He was a lost man.

A FORTUNATE GIRL

Immediately her cell was improved and brightened up. The governor became a frequent visitor. He saw that his beautiful prisoner had all the comforts she desired, including visits from a hairdresser and manicurist.

Word that the Governor was in love with this modern Mata Hari reached the Anarchist council. Correspondence that had passed between the two was seized. The Governor was brought to trial, convicted and sentenced to face the firing squad and shot.

But Mam'selle Gerogel's beauty and wiles stood her in good stead again. The Council commuted her sentence from 26 years to three. And she believes—and she may be right—that she will be free long before then.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Have the days of "walking the plank" returned?

Is piracy coming back with its black flag, skull-and-crossbones and sudden death at sea—and now also in the air?

Japan and China on land, sea and in the air are locked in battle, although each denies it is "at war" with the other.

Pirates never declared war. They never revealed their intentions. They often went about with camouflaged vessels. They struck in the dark.

Are the nations of the earth going back to that ABYSS?

Seldom a day passes that we do not find in the newspapers scientists who discuss this question which seems to be raging throughout the world:

Is the universe expanding or shrinking?

In a word, is the universe getting bigger like a soap-bubble or shrinking like a slowly deflating balloon?

We have in our own lives examples of these two actions. You weighed, maybe, three pounds when you were born. You have now EXPANDED, due to pressure of internal energies, to 180 pounds. After you are 70 you will begin to shrink, deflate.

We know also that time expands and shrinks. A month is a long time when you are young. When you are old it goes like lightning.

Take the ant. A thousand feet to an ant is a tremendous distance. To man it is nothing. This illustrates the expansion and shrinkage of space values.

With mind it is the same. If you drink two cups of black coffee or three glasses of wine your consciousness will expand enormously. When you are dead tired, it will shrink up until it disappears in sleep.

This universal expansion and shrinkage is illustrated by the Hindus in the word, KALPA, which is 4,320,000,000 years—ONE DAY in the life of Brahma, the creator. When he opens his eyes in the morning the universe expands. When he closes them at night the universe contracts.

Modern science merely tries to PROVE what the Hindu thinkers KNEW.

What would you name as the most daring, sensational, breathtaking and most PROFITLESS and PURPOSELESS feat ever accomplished in the history of the world?

Here it is. It took place 78 years ago—on August 19, 1859. Blondin (born Jean Francois Gravelet) walked across Niagara Falls on a tightrope 1100 feet long and 160 feet above the falls, with a Chicago painter, Henry A. Colcord, who amused himself by sometimes straddling Blondin's shoulders and sometimes sitting in a chair strapped to Blondin's back.

Then, some time later, Blondin did it blindfolded, then in a sack trundling a wheelbarrow, then on stilts, again carrying a man on his back, and finally he sat down midway on the rope over the abyss of death and COOKED AND ATE AN OMELETTE.

When he did these almost miraculous stunts hundreds of women fainted, others screamed and it is even said that men got deathly sick at the stomach watching him.

You can say what you want—on YOUR OWN responsibility.

You can write what you want—on YOUR OWN responsibility.

No OGPU or Gestapo will "tail" you.

You can read what you want.

You can criticize any one you want—even the President.

You can work where you want.

You can advocate any doctrine you want.

You can have 10 children or no children at all.

You can join any organization you want.

Become conscious of those things NOW and fight to retain this freedom as the MOST PRECIOUS THINGS A HUMAN BEING CAN HAVE.
